U. S. REJECTS NAZI PROTESTS

King Testifies at Hearing on Sale of Iowa-Nebraska

GIVES DETAILS OF CONTRACTS WITH DISTRICTS

Predicts Power Rates Can Be Lowered Again if Conditions Continue.

WASHINGTON. (AP). L. R. King, president of the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power company, told the federal power commission he believed further rate reductions would be possible on properties which the company proposes to sell to two public power districts. His prediction was conditional on a continuation of present business conditions.

King was the first witness at the commission's hearing on the company's request to sell its Nebraska electrical properties to the Loup River public power district and the Central Nebraska public power and irrigation district for approximately $20,000,000.

He made his statement about possible further rate reductions under questioning by Commissioner Scott. King said the company had voluntarily reduced its general residential rate in 1934 and 1936. Further reductions in residential and commercial rates were made this year.

Willing to Sell.

Asked by Scott why the company was willing to sell its Nebraska properties, King replied, "A situation had arisen in which the public power districts had built plants and some transmission lines, and which made it apparent there would be unnecessary and uneconomical duplication of facilities" creating uneconomical competition "not in the public interest."

King said the cost to the company of the property to be sold was $20,300,000. This did not include material and supplies worth approximately $200,000 which were included in the sale. Negotiations were carried on by several people, but Guy C. Myers of New York and Seattle, fiscal agent, was chief representative of the districts.

The sale price, he said, was based on the company's earnings as determined in an audit of the

MUSICA EXONERATED BROTHERS OF BLAME

NEW YORK. (UP). F. Donald Coster-Musica, in a "suicide letter" made public Thursday, exonerated his brothers of wrong-doing in the McKeson & Robbins swindle and asserted that no millions had been lost in his operation of the mysterious crude drug department because the huge sums listed as assets of that department had merely been false profits which he put on the books.

The letter, made public by Samuel Reich, attorney for the Musicas, charged that the condition of the firm was due to "the bankers, lawyers, auditors ,appraisers and incompetent high salaried executors," who, he declared, were "bleeding McKesson & Robbins white."

He said that the company should have been in receivership at the time of the Wall street crash in 1929, a year after he had reorganized it. The statement said that "all of a sudden" some company officials got "cold feet" and started "a secret investigation to cover their own steps" and to make Coster their dupe.

The letter said that no illegal handling of narcotics or alcohol was involved.

In a wandering and ungrammatical letter Coster pleaded that bankers, lawyers and others bled the company; that he stole nothing, but only falsified the books in order to show a profit for the company's securities' holders; and above all, that "my poor wife is the innocent victim of my frantic operations."

WORKERS URGE "ACTION"

WPA Layoffs Advised to See Congressmen.

Gov. Cochran reiterated Thursday to a group of WPA workers who have been laid off, that the state government has no direct connection with the WPA or similar agencies and added that responsibility for direct relief rests with the counties.

The group of ten, led by Joe Allen of Lincoln, urged action to restore layoffs. The governor advised them to get in touch with congressmen who make the appropriation.

WIELDS SNOW SHOVEL, DIES

John Peterson, 86, Fatally Stricken Thursday.

John Magnus Peterson, 86, fell dead at 9:30 a. m. Thursday while shoveling snow at his home, 1834 No. 27th. He was a retired farmer and early railroad employe, and came here from Bertrand four years ago.

Emigrating to this country at 19, Mr. Peterson settled at Water Valley, Miss., just in time to be menaced by an epidemic of yellow fever. He came to Nebraska soon and took a homestead near Holdrege. Before he had proved his title, he entered the employ of the Burlington and let the homestead go. He took another in Phelps county in 1883, and in 1887 married Miss Dorothy Larson of Holdrege. Twenty years later they moved to a farm near Bertrand.

Surviving Mr. Peterson are seven daughters: Mrs. Louise Thunberg of Olympia, Wash.; Mrs. Amanda Peterson of Stamford, N. Y.; Mrs. Lillie Sundblad of Bertrand; Mrs. Dora Thunberg of Rouleau, Saskatchewan, Canada, and Miss Edith, Miss Linda and Miss Florence Peterson, at home. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Caroline Burgeson of Chicago.

MOOBERRY ASKS 25 PERCENT CUT IN STATE BUDGET

Wants Costs Brought Down to Ability of Taxpayer to Pay.

Reduction of 25 percent in the budget of the state was requested of Gov. Cochran for the coming biennium by a group of retired farmers led by George Mooberry, Lincoln, in a hearing Thursday.

Mooberry also asked that the governor give to the legislature for its consideration an income tax proposal.

Mooberry was heard after 15 department heads had presented their budget requests.

"We have no budget to present," said Mooberry, "but we are asking that the state costs be reduced to meet our ability to pay and that the budget of the state be slashed 25 percent.

"We ask that there be no taxation proposals submitted unless they are beneficial to everyone.

"I wonder if these people who presented their enlarged budgets realize as you do and I do what condition the taxpayer is in. Our property is now worth a third of what it was and our income is practically nothing. For the last six years we haven't raised enough to pay our taxes. Still the taxes go up.

"It has come to the point where there must be a showdown. Commodities prices are high compared to what we get for that which we raise.

"The taxes on my farm, 35 years ago, were $35," Mr. Mooberry continued, "and we got as much for our produce then as we do now. Look at taxes now."

He produced the following figures: In 1936 he paid $188 taxes, of which state and county was $76 and school operation $62 and school bonds $66.

Last year he paid $253 in taxes,

FARMERS ARE GETTING CASH

Million Dollars Mailed So Far During December.

Pre-Christmas buying in all parts of Nebraska is feeling the stimulus of more than two million dollars paid out to over 14,000 farmers thruout the state, in connection with the 1938 ACP program.

By the close of business Tuesday payments totaling $2,144,302.77 had gone out to 14,316 farmers and farm owners who took part in the 1938 agricultural conservation program. Of this amount, checks in excess of one million dollars were mailed out during the first three weeks of December. The bulk of all payments were made under the 1937 program, according to Fred S. Wallace, chairman of the Nebraska ACP committee.

"Business men all over the state are now sharing the benefits of this program along with farmers and landlords," Wallace commented. A total of 44,318 applications for payment have been forwarded to county offices for signature. All but three Nebraska counties have forwarded to the state office at least a part of their summaries of performance, on which applications for payments are based.

CAN USE TAX MONEY.

The attorney general's office Thursday informed Superintendent Taylor that tax money collected to pay salaries of instructors may be used to pay instructors in adult night schools. The answer was to a request for information from V. A. Geiger, superintendent of schools at Albion.

WINTER ARRIVES WITH THE FIRST HEAVY SNOWFALL

Ranges Up to 3 Inches at Auburn—Lincoln Gets .12 of an Inch.

Nebraskans awoke Thursday morning to be greeted by the first official day of winter and to find the ground over most of the state covered with a light blanket of wet, sticky snow.

The snowstorm, predicted for two days by weather officials, moved into the state during the early evening Wednesday with light flurries in panhandle regions. Shortly after midnight the fall became heavier as a warm south wind whipped across the state.

The snowfall was heaviest in southeastern sections. Auburn reported the deepest fall with nearly three inches covering the ground. Lincoln had nearly two inches on the ground early Thursday with an official precipitation reading of .12 of an inch.

Skies remained gray early Thursday afternoon with most areas reporting some mist still falling. Temperatures stood above the freezing mark to prevent further ice hazards.

Traffic moved slowly along all highways. In Lincoln two people suffered minor injuries early Thursday as a direct result of icy pavements. A Lincoln Traction company bus, driven east on O street slid into a parked car at the curb. No one was injured.

Glazed roads outstate which periled traffic resulted from the snow and freezing mist which continued at many points. At McCook icy conditions resulted in injury to two persons. Miss Iona Potter suffered a fractured hip in a fall on a walk and Helen Knosp, 8, was struck by a skidding automobile. Both were taken to a hospital for treatment. One Omahan suffered minor injuries in one of three traffic accidents attributed to slick streets.

Buses coming in over highway No. 6 were 45 minutes late and drivers said the delay was due to slippery roads in the Holdrege *area. Altho trains were 15 min*utes to two hours late, officials attributed the delay to heavy holiday mail and passenger traffic rather than the weather.

Two Mid-Continent airplanes were grounded at Omaha and while west bound United Airlines ships cleared there on time, eastbound flights were running several hours late.

Weather bureau reports showed

KING AND WHEELER WANT WPA ABOLISHED

Request for Emergency Funds Opposed by Anti-New Dealers.

WASHINGTON. (UP). The works progress administration's request for emergency funds to avoid a shutdown Feb. 7 met opposition from anti-new deal democrats in congress. Senator King (d., Utah), demanded the abolition of WPA.

King, opponent of most administration policies, based his demand on reports to the senate campaign investigating committee which charged that relief workers were coerced during election campaigns in several states.

He said he would introduce a bill to place supervision of distribution of federal relief funds with the chairmen of the senate and house appropriations committees.

Senator Wheeler (d., Mont.), added "The WPA is a political liability and there should be a house cleaning within the agency."

He favors state administration of relief because the present setup has brought "discredit" upon the federal government.

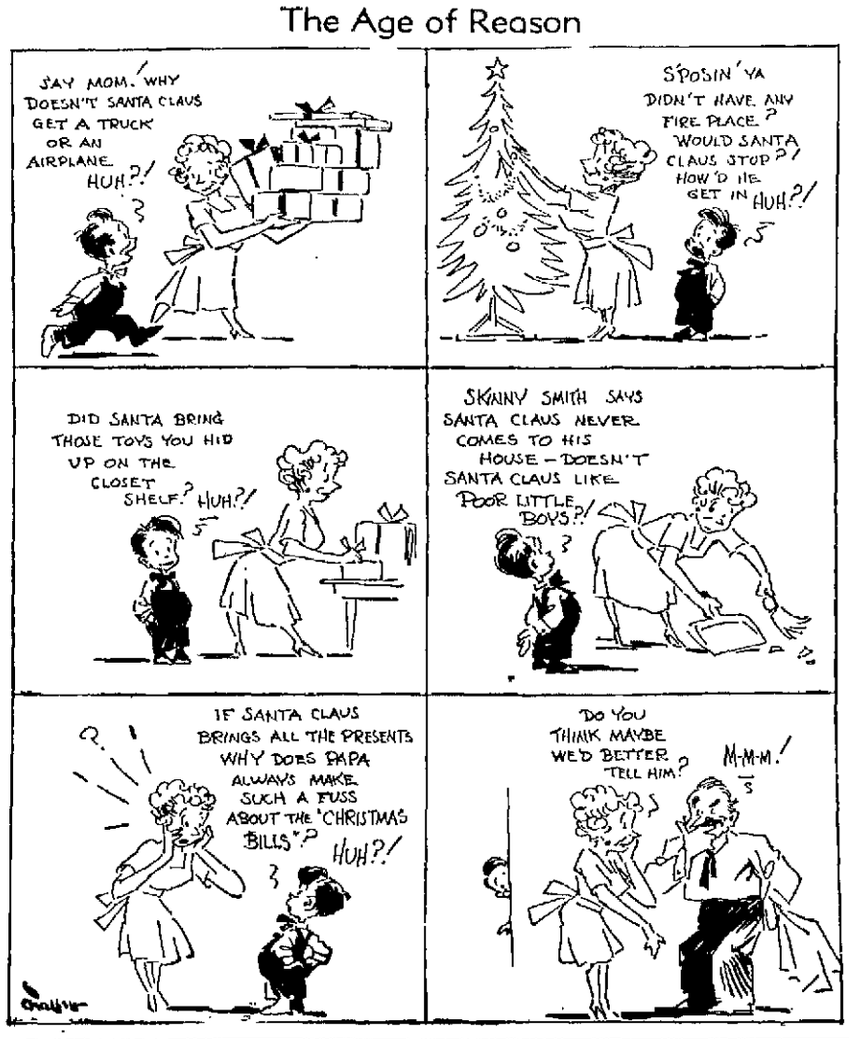

King's plan would make the secretary of the treasury custodian of relief funds. But the appropriation chairmen would authorize the distribution of funds to states upon certification by them of their unemployment and relief needs. Such a plan would return administration of relief to the states.

WOMAN IS STRUCK BY CAR

Mrs. Ruth Walker Escapes With Shock and Bruises.

Mrs. Ruth Walker, 211 No. 23rd, was hit by a car and knocked down at 16th and O streets early Thursday, suffering shock and bruises. The car was going west, the horn honking, and when it hit Mrs Walker the driver stopped, got out and helped her up, then went on without giving his name. Mrs. Walker was treated at police headquarters and taken home.

The Age of Reason

LATIN AMERICAN VIEWS EXCHANGED

Argentine, Brazil and Uruguay Chiefs Seek Solidarity Pact.

LIMA, Peru. (UP). The delegations at the eighth Pan-American conference reached an agreement on a proposed declaration of solidarity of the 21 American republics, an official announcement disclosed.

LIMA, Peru. (UP). The presidents of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay were reported to have entered into an 11th hour telegraphic exchange of views in an effort to salvage a unanimous declaration of American solidarity from the deadlock between Argentina and the United States at the eighth Pan-American conference.

The exchange of views, some observers believed, might result in new instructions to the Argentine delegation.

The conference had been deadlocked over proposals for a declaration of solidarity against foreign military or political invasion. The United States had favored a strong declaration of unity directed against the totalitarian powers, but Argentina sought to avoid including in the text any statement that might be interpreted as aimed at a specific foreign nation or group or nations.

SEND COMPLAINTS FREE

MEXICO CITY. (AP). Mexicans may now send their complaints to President Cardenas by telegraph —free of charge. The government press bureau announced that an office of complaints had been created to aid "farmers, workers, communities, schools, etc., to iron out many of their problems."

GIVES CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Rev. L. W. McMillin Co-Operative Club Speaker.

The annual Christmas message was delivered Thursday at the Co-Operative club's luncheon by Rev. L. W. McMillin.

Interpreting the meaning of the first words of St. John's gospel, "In the beginning was the Word," Rev. Mr. McMillin, after explaining the meaning as translated from the original Greek, declared, "We are lifted up thru the Babe at Bethlehem."

"God made himself known thru the person of Christ," he said. "God came to earth in the form of man and we are lifted up thru the Babe at Bethlehem."

A mixed quartet composed of Mrs. Albert Becker, Mrs. David Stahlund, C. A. Danielson and Albert Becker, with Mrs. C. E. Berg as accompanist, presented a group of Christmas numbers.

HUNT MISSING PASSPORTS

U. S. Fears 1,500 May Be Put to Improper Use.

WASHINGTON. (AP). The state department began a search in war devastated Spain for more than 1,500 missing American passports which it feared eventually might be put to improper use. Most of the original owners of the passports were among the 2,500 Americans killed while fighting for the Barcelona government against Gen. Franco's forces. American volunteers broke pledges to passport officials here by entering Spain to fight, as visas were not given for that purpose. The men turned over their papers to Spanish authorities, and few of the documents have been returned. Many of the passports were lost, captured by Franco troops, or placed in safe keeping by officials later killed.

Tips for Winter Driving: Traffic Men Urge Motorists Slow Down; Be Extra Careful on Icy Streets

The advent of winter Thursday brought snow, ice—and warnings to motorists. Lieut. Bennett of the Lincoln police and Capt. Weller of the state safety patrol urged that drivers exercise especial care on the icy streets, and both of them stressed the importance of driving more slowly.

"Altho one-fifth of all the motor accidents reported last year took place in *November and De*cember - months of comparatively low automobile mileage most of these winter weather accidents could have been prevented by the use of simple safety precautions," said Lieut. Bennett. "Foremost in the list of winter driving precautions is slower driving. But of nearly equal importance is the equalizing of brakes and the use of such practical aids as tire chains and windshield defrosters."

Capt. Weller reminded that "tire chains on the wheels are a lot better than tire chains under the seat. Drivers should also make sure their windshield wipers and defrosters are in working order." He offered the following safety tips for winter driving:

Travel at less than moderate speeds and watch out for children on sleds.

Be sure your brakes grip simultaneously and shift into second gear for more gradual braking on snow or ice, particularly if driving without chains.

Take curves slowly and don't try to pass cars ahead on hills. Descend steep grades in second gear if the highway is icy.

Apply brakes with clutch engaged and before you ordinarily would in dry weather. Don't depend on the horn because other car windows may be closed and some drivers may wear ear muffs.

Open the car windows occasionally to prevent windows from fogging.

GOVERNOR HEARS 15 BUDGET STATEMENTS

Most Departments Carrying Slight Increase Over Last Biennium.

Gov. Cochran heard 15 budgets as prepared by department heads Thursday morning. Most of the budgets bear increases over the 1937-39 appropriations.

Charles Smrha, director of the insurance department, suggested that the appropriation be fixed for his department. Heretofore, the fees collected have all been available for use but the total has never been needed or spent. He suggested that it might be well to put such a limit upon the budget, in line with trends in that direction.

Some of the increases requested may be necessary, the governor said, referring to the increase in the budget of the board of par*dons and paroles.* This agency has greatly increased burdens because of the interstate parole pact, under which Nebraska paroles are investigated in other states without cost to Nebraska and Nebraska does the same for other states without costs to them.

This, Mike Kracher, parole officer said, has cut down the parole violation from 18 to about 7 percent.

The game, forestation and parks commission pointing out that the tourist trade is worth $55,000,000 to the state each year, asked for money to keep the parks in repair.

The aeronautics commission's increased request was to meet federal money which may be

HENRY EIRICH IS HURT

Lincoln Man Struck by a Car While Fixing Tire.

Henry Eirich, 41, 905 No. 8th, was injured early Thursday morning when struck by an auto while changing a tire on his car, parked on the north slope of the 10th st. viaduct. Reports indicated that Jay Schweitzer, 22, 4243 Baldwin, driving south on 10th just south of the Charleston intersection, hit Eirich as his auto skidded on the icy pavement and failed to stop in time. Schweitzer brought Eirich to police headquarters where he was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital. Dr. H. Blum reported that Eirich suffered a fractured rib, fractured vertebra, bruises and possible internal injury. It was the first traffic injury of the season caused by icy streets.

THOUSAND ARRESTS IN REBEL SPAIN ROUNDUP

Incriminating Evidence Is Wrapped in Shirt of British Vice Consul.

By the Associated Press.

A great spy hunt in insurgent Spain, which some quarters said might affect the entire course of the Spanish civil war, was reported officially to London.

Approximately 1,000 arrests were said made and an official statement from the Spanish insurgent foreign ministry acknowledged that documents had been seized "designed to inform" the Spanish government command "about our future military operations."

London informants called it "the case of the dirty shirt" because the "incriminating information" was wrapped in a shirt in the baggage of a British vice consul at San Sebastian, as he was about to leave insurgent territory. Consul Harold Goodman was said absolved of guilt but several employes of British consulates in insurgent Spain were reported "under suspicion."

Italy gave France notice that she considers invalid the Mussolini-Laval convention of 1935 concerning Tunisia. Rome waited for France to offer concessions. Diplomatic quarters expressed belief that Premier Mussolini, determined to make the Rome-Berlin axis benefit him, was in earnest on this issue.

Japan to Help China.

Japanese Premier Konoye declared Japan was prepared to help China abolish the foreign concessions and extraterritoriality, the system of special privileges enjoyed by some foreigners in China for almost a century.

Sir Samuel Hoare, British home secretary, told the final 1938 meeting of the house of commons that any German attempt to compel German nationals in Britain to join a British branch of the nazi labor front would be "a punishable offense."

CLARENCE MILLER IS FREED FROM PRISON

Court Holds Ten Year Sentence for Habitual Criminality Was Void.

Doors of the penitentiary were opened Thursday to Clarence Miller, 40, sentenced from Cass county in 1934 to serve a year for chicken stealing and ten years for being an habitual criminal, when District Judge Chappell ordered Miller released by Warden O'Grady. Miller should have served but one year under the law, but did not make application for a writ of habeas corpus until recently.

It is another Harry Kiwitzky case, in which the supreme court held that the habitual criminal provision does not set out a distinct crime but provides that the repetition of criminal conduct aggravates the guilt and justifies increased penalties.

When Miller was sentenced for stealing chickens in Cass county he was charged in a separate count with being an habitual criminal. Had he been properly charged he could have been sentenced for ten years, but the supreme court had held in a similar case that the second count was void. Miller admitted serving several previous terms and pleaded guilty to being an habitual criminal when he was sentenced.

HANCOCK ON FHLB BOARD

North Carolinan Is Appointed by President.

WASHINGTON. (UP). President Roosevelt appointed Franklin W. Hancock, jr., of North Carolina to the federal home loan bank board. Hancock, a former North Carolina congressman, fills a vacancy which has existed on the bank board for some time.

BERLIN CALLED SPEECH OF ICKES COARSE INSULT

Welles Tells Germany Secretary's Talk Represented U. S. Feeling.

WASHINGTON. (UP). Acting Secretary of State Welles disclosed that the United States emphatically rejected German protests against an address by Secretary of Interior Ickes and at the same time criticized attacks in the German press on President Roosevelt and his cabinet.

The protest was lodged with Welles by Dr. Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires at the German embassy here, but was not disclosed until a semi-official announcement was made by the Berlin press.

Welles said he informed Thomsen verbally that Ickes' speech delivered at Cleveland Sunday represented the feeling of an overwhelming majority of the people in this country.

BERLIN. (UP). Germany has "most sharply" protested to the U. S. state department against "coarse and insulting" remarks made by Secretary of Interior Ickes in a speech at Cleveland regarding conditions in Germany, it was announced semiofficially. Germany's charge d'affaires at Washington presented the protest to the under secretary of state, it was added.

CLEVELAND. (UP). Remarks by Secy. Ickes regarding Germany, which were the object of a protest to the U. S. department of state by the reich, were made here Sunday night in a nationwide broadcast. Ickes, in a speech before the Cleveland Zionist society, attacked Americans who accept nazi medals and referred specifically to Henry Ford and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The cabinet officer added that Germany's persecution of Jews had carried that nation back to a "period of history when man was unlettered, benighted and bestial."

WASHINGTON. (AP). Secretary Ickes left it up to the state department to answer a German protest against a speech he made

GANNETT REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT ATTACK

Says U. S. Has Fair and Free Press Not Edited by "Counting Room."

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP). Frank E. Gannett, Rochester publisher protested to President Roosevelt for what he termed "an unfair reflection that "newspapers are edited in the counting room."

In an open letter, Gannett answered a recent statement by the president in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in which Mr. Roosevelt said: "I have always been firmly persuaded that our newspapers cannot be edited in the interests of the general public from the counting room."

"Anyone familiar with newspapers," Gannett said, "knows full well that any paper edited from the counting room would be doomed to failure. No one is more sure of that than the publishers themselves."

Asserting that he wrote his "open letter" at the request of the Post-Dispatch, Gannett continued:

"Of course a newspaper to be independent, fearless and in position to render maximum service to its readers and its community, must be strong financially. There must be business efficiency in the management of the publication. But that cannot mean, by any stretch of the imagination, that the editorial policy shall be dictated by the business office."

Gannett said that a generation ago, "when newspapers were weak financially and living from hand to mouth, all sorts of subsidies were accepted to keep the paper going."

ARMY FLIERS ARE KILLED

Ellis and Downer Victims Near Norfolk, Va.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP). Two army fliers were instantly killed when their pursuit plane crashed and burned. Lieut. Gale Ellis of Beaver Falls, Pa., pilot, and Pvt. Charles S. Downer of Tarentum, Pa., were engaged in a routine training flight.

STATE WHEAT ACREAGE REDUCED 19 PERCENT

Small Yield of 1938, Poor Return, Causes of Cut for Coming Year.

Reduction in wheat acreage of 19 percent for 1939 the record planting of last year was caused by the disappointing crop and price of the present year, State and Federal Crop Statistician, A. E. Anderson, reported Thursday

He reported the condition of the wheat at 71 percent, the same as on Dec 1 last year and well below the average condition Severe drouth is causing much of the suffering. First measurable snow of the winter in eastern Nebraska came Wednesday night and Thursday and will aid the wheat condition.

About 3,824,000 acres of wheat was planted, 897,000 below last year. It exceeds the 1928-35 average of 3,469,000. Most marked reductions were in the eastern and south central sections where corn is replacing wheat

"The majority of wheat in south central and southwestern Nebraska, except for parts of Chase, Perkins and Keith counties, is badly in need of moisture Damage to wheat roots from aphids has been commonly reported. Moisture tests indicate a serious shortage of soil moisture in practically the entire area between Clay Center and Benkelman," Anderson said.

The national wheat acreage reduction and condition is 18 percent and 72 percent, respectively.

Rye acreage sown this fall was estimated at 742,000 acres—second largest planted acreage of record. It was surpassed only by the 1936 planting of 758,000 acres Last year's acreage was 675,000. Rye condition was given as 75 percent compared with 73 percent a year ago.

ADVICE FOR THE TEACHERS

Combination of Subjects Is Best, Says Moritz.

The teacher able to teach English, music, commercial subjects and home economics is the one, generally speaking, who has the greatest chance of getting a job today, according to the annual report of the University of Nebraska teacher placement bureau.

"Even when preparing to teach on the college level," Director R. D. Moritz stated, "qualifying in one subject only lessens opportunity for placement. Out of a total of 143 college calls, 40 percent required the candidate to be able to teach more than one subject Only 25 percent of the calls for high school teachers were for educators who would be required to teach only one subject When this was the case the requests came from the larger schools where considerable teaching experience is essential."

UNION VETERANS HONORED

D. U. V. Sponsors Christmas Dinner Party.

L C McBride and E. F. Brown, both of whom can look back to the time when they wore blue uniforms in the Civil war, were honored guests at a Christmas party Thursday afternoon at the Odd Fellows hall sponsored by the camp and Kensington of the Daughters of Union Veterans. The setting was made more festive with Christmas decorations

Following a dinner at which veterans and widows of veterans received gifts, carols were sung and the following program was presented:

Music, ladies quartet Mrs Newton Gaines, Mrs J. M Neely, Mrs H E Spaulding, Mrs Judith Vehrs

POSTAL RECEIPTS MOUNT

Lincoln Sent 260,000 Letters Into World Wednesday.

Postal authorities, after figuratively fighting their way thru Christmas mailers to a quiet corner, Thursday came forth with these statistics. Wednesday a stream of 260,000 letters poured out of Lincoln, and about an equal number came in Also, 38,000 pounds of packages were delivered here.

If Christmas postal business is any indication, Lincoln is on its way to prosperity. Receipts Wednesday were $6,691.36 as compared with $5,625.98 on the same day in 1937. Wednesday night receipts for the month were $2,059.15 ahead of the receipts up to that time a year ago.

BONUS CHECKS ARE GIVEN TO EMPLOYES

Miller's, Penney's and Kresge's Continue Annual Distribution.

The custom of issuing Christmas bonus checks to employes was again observed this week by three firms here; Miller & Paine's, the J. C. Penney company and the S. S. Kresge company.

All employes of Miller & Paine, both full time and part time workers, received a Christmas bonus Wednesday, figured on a basis of their wages Those who have been in the store from one to five years received the equivalent of two and a half weeks' salary. Those employed longer than five years received three weeks' salary. All others were given 5 percent of the amount they received this year in wages This is the third consecutive year a bonus has been paid at Christmas time, but it has been paid in many other years, not successively The total of the bonus was not disclosed.

Employes of the J. C. Penney store in Lincoln will share in the special Christmas bonus which is being distributed this week to the 30,000 employes of the company thruout the country.

All employes of the company, no matter in what department, who have been employed for one full year will receive two weeks extra salary. Those employed for a shorter time will receive payment commensurate with their length of service.

Christmas remembrances for employes were continued this year by the S. S. Kresge company with the amounts in each case being based upon the length of service to the company. Every one of the 100 Lincoln employes regularly employed will be remembered About $1,000 will be distributed.

COURT ERRS ON SENTENCE

Wilhite Given Three Months on Each of Two Counts.

Donna Wilhite, 17, 1717 So. 28th, fined $100 and costs in municipal court Dec. 15th on each of two counts in a complaint charging joyriding, was returned to the jurisdiction of the court Thursday morning to be resentenced. Officials discovered Acting Judge Jacobson had misread the statute covering the offense.

The previous order of the court was vacated, Wilhite was rearraigned sentenced to three months in jail and fined $100 and costs on each of the two counts after pleading guilty. Wilhite is also facing trial in district court on charges of breaking and entering automobiles. The charges grew out of the same episode that brought the joyriding complaint.

The resentence was made necessary when the court read the statute covering the offense as "fine of $100 and costs, or three months in jail," instead of "and three months in jail."

Coster's Suicide Note

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—The text of F. Donald Coster's suicide note, as released by his attorney, Samuel Reich, follows:

"Bankers lawyers auditors appraisers and incompetent high salaried executives have bled McKesson & Robbins white The company should have been in receivership at the time of the crash one year after its reorganization I have tried to hold it up to stave off the inevitable—no man has ever worked harder or received less pay to make something work out for the interest of all.

"There has always been friction within the board of directors because the wholesale business is a rotten business at the best. The wholesale part wrote off millions for bad debts and inventories There was nothing said about that, just 1929 crash responsible

"If profits were not maintained since 1929 the bankers and lawyers that wanted to milk it through receivership would have succeeded—I tried to stop them.

"Let the world judge if bankers lawyers, auditors, appraisers that got millions out of the company knew nothing

"All of a sudden the treasurer and inside shotters gang got cold feet and started a stock irrigation with no other objective than to cover their steps and run to cover, making me and underlings the goat and bringing shame and humiliation on my poor loving wife who was ignoram of the conditions

Says "No Millions Lost."

"I have too much pride and regard for a lonely devoted and sick wife to confide in her my inner heart—there are no millions lost or hidden, much less narcotic or alcohol involved

"If selling non-beverage cosmetic and perfume preparations up to 1927 or 1928 was criminal every large drug house did the same and the government checked and approved such transactions—the merger was made to expand the sale of patent medicine of an old house such as McKesson

"The wholesale division in 10 years has failed to do its part in selling our manufactured products at any profit to the plant The heavy secret campaign fund paid by bankers enabled them to turn the cards on me as the goat, incidentally making me the political pawn of three investigating agencies to see which could get the jump and glory on the other.

"I have not tried to ruin the company or stockholders If I did I could have sold my holdings in 1928 for over $3,000,000 Instead, I am a ruined man through the treachery of legal intrigue.'

Accuses Co-Trustee.

"From time to time and the rest of directors who are now running to cover—some of them either had knowledge or were totally unfit to serve as directors—one in particular now co-trustee was selling his common stock and that of his friends to the public with full knowledge of the situation under investigation.

"In my case I was making a desperate effort to salvage something out of the wreck—

"Any gift or present I have made my wife or members of my family is not company money She had no knowledge of any nature or description of my situation or operations My brothers-in-law both did as I asked them because they thought it was right and proper to do so and trusted me They received no material reward and did so blindly—at my request

"My wife was in Florida when the account of Steiner House was opened I simply wanted to make her a gift with which she could make a little for her maintenance in case anything happened to me

Asked Her To Sign Check.

"I asked her to sign a check that I wanted to make some money for her—the money came out of the Jenkins account which I ordered him to pay over to his sister as personally I wanted no profit This amount originally given to Jenkins was my money realized from the sale of McKesson stock and the balance after paying off my loans plus profit

"In conclusion, as you shall deal with my poor unfortunate wife her family and mine, in like measure shall God reward you all—

"And know that there are no hidden treasures anywhere

"My poor wife is the innocent victim of my frantic operations to hold up this concern of McKesson—my brother-in-law Leonard and John Jenkins who did what I asked them to do thinking and believing in me that it was right have no business experience and full confidence in me which I betrayed George and Robert Dietrich took orders.

Says Management "Rotten."

McKesson should have been in receivership in 1930 and again 1932 if its profits had not been bolstered by a frantic effort to save the company—and the alleged millions 'lost are simply profits' to save the company from the hands of the bondholders and afford a dividend at least to the preferred stock in the hand of 'innocent stockholders that were not getting salaries for the rottenest kind of management.

"In other words, in the main they were wash sales to create a profit that did not exist, and what is missing is the alleged profits plus expenses and blackmail money paid to maintain it

"It was a case of who could put the company into receivership first to stop the orgie first—Wall street lawyers on the board won

"As God is my judge, I am the victim of Wall street plumber and blackmail in a struggle for honest existence.

"O, Merciful God, bring the truth to light

(Signed) F. D COSTER."

Attorney's Statement.

Reich, Coster's attorney, made the following statement after releasing the note:

"As has been previously told in the press the night before Mr Coster ended his life he was in conference with his counsel until the early hours of the morning. It is apparent now that at that time he was contemplating self destruction

"In the course of that conference he instructed me to see to it that the true facts should be brought to light Thereafter his written statement was found In the light of what has been said of him I considered it my duty as his counsel to make it known."

WANTS FUND EXTENSION

WASHINGTON. (UP) Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said he will recommend that congress extend the $2,000,000,000 monetary stabilization fund. The authority to operate the account expires June 30, 1939. The account was set up at the time the dollar was devalued in 1933 and has been used since then to stabilize international monetary operations and to protect currencies from fluctuations which might arise from speculations.

OMAHA FIRM WINS ITS CASE

State Must Refund Unemployment Payments.

District Judge Shepherd ruled Thursday that State Labor Commissioner Kinney must refund $257 25 to the Interstate livestock commission, Omaha, paid by the firm for unemployment compensation for the year 1937. This is the first ruling on such a case in the Lancaster county district court.

The commission firm contended that it did not have more than seven persons employed after October, 1936 and was not an employer in the sense the term is used under the 1937 act. The labor commissioner took the position that the firm had employed more prior to the date stated and that the act was retroactive the decreasing of its force did not relieve it from paying, and it should pay for 1937 the commissioner held. The firm paid under protest and when Kinney refused to allow its claim for refund of the money appealed to the district court

Judge Shepherd in his ruling found for the appellant company on its petition on appeal and found that the act of 1937 on which the appellee assumed to collect $257 25 was and is invalidly retroactive as a basis of said collection and the appellant was entitled to recover the amount prayed for.

ESTATE PETITIONS FILED

Petition for administration of the estate of Leonard Lake, former employe of The Journal, was filed in county court Thursday. Lake died Nov. 21st The petition listed $3,000 of real and personal property, and named his widow, Selma and minor children as heirs. It asked that Floyd E. Morgan be made administrator

Petition for administration of the estate of Kate E Russell, who died Nov 14th, was filed in county court Thursday. Caroline H Russell of Lincoln and Winifred Russell Freeman of Urbana, Ill., sisters of the deceased, were named as heirs The petition asked that Caroline H. Russell be made administratrix of the estate.

SKATING ICE MUSHY.

Winter came to Lincoln with howling winds and more than a flurry of snow, but there is no ice for skating. Recreation Director Lewis said the snow has added less than nothing to prospects for skating, but is melting on ice surfaces and contributing to the general mushiness. The little Sawyer-Snell inland sea remains just that, and places which have been frozen to some extent this year are now just so much sherbet.

ON NATIONAL COMMITTEES

Three members of the Lincoln junior chamber of commerce have been named to committees of the national organization. Harold Hinds has been appointed on the trade promotion committee; Robert Mossholder to the public health committee and Howard Spahnle on the "Get Out The Vote" committee. They will also be in charge of their committee activities in the state.

FIDELITY IS ENJOINED

DETROIT. (UP). Federal Judge Edward Moinet granted a permanent injunction against the Fidelity Investment association, a West Virginia corporation, restraining it from continuing its present business practice. The securities and exchange commission had charged the association with misrepresentation, fraud and "window dressing."

C. F. BARTH IN ACCIDENT

SEWARD, Neb.—Charles F. Barth, attorney, escaped serious injury Wednesday evening when his auto collided with a hayrack loaded with firewood and caromed into the ditch two miles east of Seward. He was returning from Lincoln when blinded by the lights of an approaching auto. He said he did not see the hayrack. His auto was almost completely demolished. Barth suffered a painful knee injury. Plamer Welch, driving the hayrack, was uninjured.

HOLD CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Lions club, with Jasper Clarke filling the role of Santa Claus, held its annual Christmas party Thursday noon. Nearly 200 club members, their wives, and children were present. Presents were distributed from the tree and then the group went to a matinee at the Kiva.

At 5 p m Saturday the club will hold it's 17th annual Christmas party at Tabitha home and Clarke will again fill the role of Santa Judge Reid, who has charge as chairman for the parties for the past ten years, is in charge of arrangements.

UNCOVER RACING SWINDLE

Elderly Persons Said Mulcted of $100,000.

NEW YORK. (AP). A federal grand jury Thursday indicted Rufus Oliver, special investigator for the local district attorney in Corpus Christi, Tex, and 21 other persons on charges of mail fraud and conspiracy growing out of a $100,000 race track confidence swindle. Federal officials said victims were mostly elderly persons in Texas, California and other western states who were taken in by the ancient nebulous promise of fortunes to be made on "fixed" races at American, Canadian and Cuban tracks.

Asst. U. S Atty. John J. Dowling said individual swindles ranged from $1,000 to $25,000. Prosecution of the ring was initiated in New York after Postal Inspector Herbert N. Graham discovered that much of the defendants' mail was cleared thru local postoffices. Dowling said the ring operated chiefly from Corpus Christi.

Others named in the indictment included Emery Scott King, alleged director of operations; Jack Reynolds, William O Wood, James W Alexander and Robert Fuller, all of Hot Springs, Ark.; Robert Kohler, Joseph Ordens, Charles Gardner, Sisto Quidotti, George R. Barnett and 11 other persons whose names were not known.

MRS. LAUB STILL CRITICAL

Pedestrian Shows Little Improvement Thursday.

Mrs. Stephen Laub, 22, 1422 D, critically injured when struck by an auto at 13th and D Tuesday night, remained in very critical condition Thursday afternoon. She was reported to have shown some improvement following an operation Wednesday but attendants reported she spent a restless night and had shown no improvement Thursday.

OPPOSES VOTE RECOUNT

Dodge County Attorney Says Opponent Ineligible.

FREMONT, Neb. (UP). Dismissal of a recount suit was sought by Co. Atty. William Lamme, who charged that his opponent in the November election, Richard Winkelman, Fremont police judge, was ineligible to hold the office of county attorney.

Lamme filed an answer in county court in response to the petition for recount filed by Winkelman. Lamme alleged that his republican opponent has been police judge since April 7, 1935, and that approximately $225 has been paid into police court in fines, penalties, forfeitures and costs, which he charged Winkelman had failed to turn over to the county treasurer prior to the election.

Winkelman said the money "had not been diverted to my own personal use" and added it was the custom to pay the money collected from fines to the county at various times. He said the money had been paid to the county. The recount was to start Thursday.

ATTORNEYS PROTEST OPINION OF COURT

Compensation Law Not a Pension System to Be Paid by Public.

Hall, Cline & Williams and F. A. Wright filed a brief Thursday as friends of the supreme court in support of the motion for rehearing in the case of Thomas A. Micek against the Omaha steel works, in which the court held that the fact that Micek was able work as a bartender did not bar him from drawing compensation for total disability. They say the brief is filed because the court in its opinion has set out a legal principle which will greatly affect all future compensation litigation and will impose additional burdens upon all industries and the general public. They assert that the rule laid down is not in accord with the theory of the compensation law or previous holdings of the court. Micek is now drawing higher wages than when he was injured.

The attorneys say that the authorities sustained compensation under such circumstances only when there is partial disability, and that the rule cannot apply in cases of total disability. They say the theory of the Nebraska compensation law is to tax industry with the risk of injury to employes with the idea that the industry can then pass it on to the ultimate consumer or the public by increasing the price of the product. It does not propose to compensate the employe in full, but to provide him with a means of livelihood during disability and to become rehabilitated in the event that he suffers a permanent disability.

The law is not a pension plan, and it is not in harmony with the theory or purpose of the law to force the public to bear the burden of paying employes compensation for life when they are able to earn wages even exceeding those earned when injured and when they have not suffered a complete loss of earning power. The fact that he is earning money proves there has not been a total disability loss, they add.

MOOBERRY ASKS CUT

of which state and county were $85, school operation $73 and school bonds $96.

"It makes no difference what land is worth, taxes are still there. But people have learned to put their money in something that will bring revenue and that they will not have to pay taxes on. Something must be done," insisted Mr. Mooberry.

"I am against the whole tax system as it is now, with the farm and home and property owner bearing 70 to 75 percent of the burden. I am for a straight and honest income tax, then when we have it we can pay it but we won't be burdened when we don't have it.

"If we keep on taxing property, pretty soon there won't be any property to tax.

"I am asking," he continued, "that you veto all bills calling for experiments and do away with the work of the last legislature which set up new experiments."

The governor recalled that the last legislature had increased his proposed budget by a half million dollars and over the general appropriation bill the governor has no veto power.

Mooberry said that government aid for the first two years of the drouth had been grand but after that it was a "lemon." He emphatically stated that he was not in favor of an increase for anything.

Others who were heard, R. T. Ruegg and Mart Fender, both attacked the bindweed law which sets up bindweed eradication districts, and stated that each farmer should be made responsible for his own bindweed.

Mooberry referred to a request by the game, forestation and parks commission for money to keep park buildings in repair for tourists. He asked, "Who is going to keep farm and business buildings in repair?"

L. R. KING FIRST

past three years' business. King testified that no commission would be paid by the company out of the proceeds of the sale.

The districts plan to finance purchases of Iowa-Nebraska and other private systems by sale of bonds to a syndicate headed by Bancamerica-Blair corporation of New York. Backers of the program have said purchase of all the private utilities in the state might require issuance of $90,000,000 worth of bonds.

Property Will be Clear.

The property, he said, would be transferred to the districts without encumbrance. The net proceeds, he said, would be deposited with the Cleveland Trust company, trustee for bonds of the Iowa-Nebraska company. Of the proceeds, $1,500,000 would be used to retire bonds of the Lincoln Public Service company and $1,500,000 to retire bonds of the Lincoln Electric company.

The company, he said, expected to retire also $3,000,000 worth of its own bonds and pay $3,500,000 in notes representing money borrowed from its parent company, the Continental Gas and Electric corporation. The balance probably would be used in acquiring properties in Iowa to carry out an integration plan, under the holding company act, of the United Light & Power company, of which the Continental Gas and Electric corporation is a subsidiary.

Terms of Contract.

King explained terms of the contract between the company and the Loup River public power district and the Central Nebraska public power and irrigation district. The contract, he said, covered substantially all of the company's electrical properties in Nebraska, with the exception of a sub-station at Plattsmouth, and a 66,000 volt transmission line connecting that sub-station with the company's lines in Iowa.

King said sale of the Nebraska electrical properties would not be detrimental to the operations of the Iowa system owned by the company. The company could continue to obtain power for its Iowa properties from the Nebraska Power company by way of the Plattsmouth substation and transmission line.

The Central Nebraska district would assume the company's contract to furnish power at wholesale for the town of Summerfield, Kas. If the Loup River district needed supplementary power after it took over the company's Nebraska properties, the company could furnish it thru its transmission line extending from Missouri Valley, Ia., west across the Missouri river.

Gas Plants Excluded.

King said the contract excluded the company's gas plants in Nebraska, but included its steam heating and ice manufacturing properties. The company and the districts had prepared an operating agreement providing that the company's personnel should remain during the period of adjustment which would follow the transfer of the property.

Guy C. Myers of New York and Seattle, who is arranging for the sale of bonds with which to finance the transaction, was not present. He was represented by Joseph Heffernan, who said Myers would testify if he were needed.

King said the sale price of $20,195,991 did not include the company's electrical accounts receivable. These might amount to $120,000 in the case of property to be sold to the Loup River district, and $150,000 in the case of properties to be taken over by the Central Nebraska district. Thus, the total possible sale price under the agreement might be $20,765,991.

Rates Cut in June.

Posey Kime, an attorney for the commission, in cross examination elicited from King the admission that the audit on which one price is based did not take into account rate reductions made since June 30, this year.

Kime asked if it were not true the two districts would receive $127,000 less in a year as a result of those reductions than the company received in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1938. King replied it was impossible to answer that question in the affirmative, because the company found that after the rate reduction, increased consumption tended to offset the loss in revenue.

Under questioning by Kime, King said he believed the first proposition to buy the property was made to him by Myers. He could not recall the date. The price was agreed upon at a meeting about a month ago at which Myers, John Dern of Chicago, the president of United Light & Power company, and himself were present.

"Was Mr. Ross at any of the meetings?" asked Kime, referring to J. D. Ross, administrator of the Bonneville power project in Washington state and former associate of Myers in public power projects. King said he understood Ross had attended some of the meetings.

Altho the League of Nebraska municipalities had requested the commission to postpone the hearing for two weeks, no opposition witnesses were present. Richard J. Connor, assistant general counsel for the commission, read into the record requests for postponement from J. Roy Carter, mayor of Norfolk, K. S. Wherry, mayor of Pawnee City, and the mayor of St. Edward, together with a request from E. M. Black, president of the Community club at Fullerton, that the hearing be held in Nebraska so that communities affected would have a better opportunity to be heard. To all these requests the commission had replied the hearing would be held in Washington.

WINTER ARRIVES

.16 of an inch of rain and snow at Sioux City, .02 at Chadron and .01 at Omaha, Grand Island and Valentine. A trace of snow fell at North Platte, Sidney and Burwell. Temperatures ranged from a low of 18 at Sidney to a high of 30 at North Platte and Valentine during the night.

The Burlington reported ¼ to 1 inch of snow along all of its Omaha to Lincoln division, with a trace to two inches from Red Cloud to Rapier in the Wymore division. The McCook area reported mist turning to ice late Wednesday. No snow had fallen but foggy conditions held from Denver east.

Lincoln Telephone company reports of southeastern Nebraska showed one half inch of snow covering the ground at Beatrice, and Fairbury, two and one half at Humboldt, and one-half inch at Tecumseh and Wymore.

Their Lincoln division showed one inch at Nebraska City and Weeping Water, one and one-half at Friend, Plattsmouth, and Syracuse, with sleet and snow at Wahoo early Thursday.

The Hastings area reported only light mist Thursday morning following traces of snow during the night. York reported a light snow Thursday morning with David City indicating ice was forming on telephone wires from the wet snow there. Other points along the York division including Gresham, McCool, Milford, Osceola, Polk, and Seward, reported light snow during the night.

The forecast called for light rain or snow following warmer weather in eastern areas.

A. E. Anderson, state-federal agricultural statistician, said the snow was encouraging but "we need about a foot of it." He said if real cold weather would set in and freeze the moisture it would serve as a protection for vegetation. The moisture content of the present snow is a question, Anderson said, adding that the ideal condition would be a foot of snow which would stay where it fell.

BERLIN ATTACKED SPEECH

attacking dictatorships. Greeted at his press conference by a loud and facetious round of "hells," the secretary replied "and a Merry Christmas to you."

He said that for diplomatic reasons he could not discuss charges made in German newspapers in view of the formal protest.

WASHINGTON. (AP) Senator Pittman (d., Nev.) chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, issued the following statement, without immediate clarification:

"1. The people of the United States do not like the government of Japan.

"2. The people of the United States do not like the government of Germany.

"3. The people of the United States, in my opinion, are against any form of dictatorial government, communistic or fascistic.

"4. The people of the United States have the right and power to enforce morality and justice in accordance with the peace treaties with us. And they will. Our government does not have to use military force and will not unless necessary."

MILLION JOBS ARE ADDED

Secretary Perkins Estimates Employment.

WASHINGTON. (UP). Secy. Perkins estimated Thursday that non-agricultural employment has increased 1,000,000 since June, including a contra-seasonal gain of 30,000 in November.

"Approximately 150,000 workers found employment in November in retail and wholesale trade, factories, bituminous coal and metal mines and brokerage offices," she said.

"These gains were partially offset by declines, largely seasonable, on the railroads, which laid off 16,000 men, in water transportation, public and private building construction, in service and other non-manufacturing industries, and in casual work."

DUCHESS OF ATHOLL LOSES

Had Rebelled Against Chamberlain's Policies.

CRIEFF, Scotland. (AP). The duchess of Atholl, who rebelled against Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy, was beaten by 1,313 votes in the parliamentary by-election she forced to test the issue, complete returns showed.

F. M. Wolfinger has appealed to the supreme court from an adverse judgment rendered in Lancaster county in a suit he filed against Fred Shaw for personal injuries.

A voluntary petition of bankruptcy was filed in federal court by Edward A. Cox, mechanic living at 121 So. 17th. He listed $1,534.99 in debts of which $1,145.02 is unsecured. Assets are listed at $430, of which $50 is claimed to be exempt.

Joe Ryan was fined $25 and costs in municipal court Thursday morning after pleading guilty to petit larceny. The complaint charged Ryan with stealing eight cravats valued at $4.40 from a Lincoln department store on Dec. 21. James Haywood pleaded guilty to petit larceny, involving theft of 500 pounds of coal valued at $3 from the Meek Lumber company, Dec. 21, and was also fined $25 and costs.

Everett Egan, 17, and Robert Wittstruck, jr., 18, who started thumbing their way west Saturday night and wrote from Alliance that they were starting home immediately, telephoned Thursday from Denver that they really were coming now, by train. They had previously told Denver police they would get back to Lincoln the way they left, but snow changed their minds for them. Everett Egan telephoned his father, Mike Egan, to expect them on Friday.

H. D. Lewis and other heirs of Ralph Lewis of Keya Paha county appealed to the supreme court Thursday from a finding of the district court ordering enforcement of an agreement that they had made with Mary Rhodes and Ernestine Runyan, other heirs, in settlement of a will contest the latter had started. They insisted that since the agreement was signed the value of the estate has so greatly diminished that there would be an inequitable amount left the other heirs.

Two cars and a truck were involved in an accident on Highway No. 77 west of Havelock Thursday about 7:30 a. m. when ice on windshields caused a sideswiping of the vehicles doing some damage to the cars and truck but no one was injured. Deputy Sheriff Ward was called to the scene of the accident and made a checkup. The truck belonged to C. S. Guenzel company and was driven by Henry Perkinton of 6519 Morrill st. The other cars were driven by D. V. Phillips, 5621 Ballard and Alfred Leybold of Waco, route No. 2. Phillips and Leybold were going in the same direction and the truck was coming toward them and struck both cars, the deputy sheriff said. Phillips and Leybold were accompanied by their families.

Heirs of F. C. Krotter, formerly a wealthy resident of Hitchcock county and owner of lands in other counties, sought the aid of the supreme court Thursday in support of their claim that the appraisement for inheritance tax purposes should be reduced. They assert that the actual cash value at the time of his death, and not the fair market value for cash of the various items of property, should be the basis used. The estate was valued at approximately $150,000, but the two sons, Dean and F. Chauncey Kroetter, say this was about a third over-valued.

Attorneys for the Sun Indemnity company asked the supreme court Thursday to set aside the judgment for $2,639 obtained in Platte county by Charles Svitak against his employer, Earl V. Hardy, suit upon which was brought by Svitak against the insurance company when not paid Svitak, a station attendant, was injured when the car in which he and Hardy were riding became involved in an automobile accident while they were returning from an oil company's get together meeting in Omaha. The insurance company says Svitak was a guest of Hardy, and this liability was not covered by its policy. It says when Hardy discovered he did not have compensation insurance, he and Svitak arranged a friendly suit. The company says that the policy bound Hardy to co-operate with it in the defense of the suit, and not conceal or misrepresent facts; that there can be no liability when such co-operation is refused, and that where an employe goes on a business trip with his employer, the fact that he also combined pleasure with it by going to a night club does not separate the business part.

FSA STARTS TWO DAY MEET

Formulating Loan Policies and Procedure.

District and home management supervisors under FSA started a two day conference Thursday at the Cornhusker, formulating plans which are hoped to bring increased efficiency in serving the 10,000 farm family borrowers from FSA. Presiding was Florence Atwood, associate state director, and L. A. White, Nebraska's FSA head.

White said the meeting was preliminary to district gatherings all over the state during January, where policy and procedure will be taken up. Helping in presenting the picture of the state's farm predicament Thursday morning were W. H. Brokaw, extension director; H. G. Gould, his assistant; R. E. Holland, district extension leader; Elton Lux, editorial agricultural extension assistant; and Paul Stewart, Federal Land bank representative.

Meeting winds up with a banquet Friday evening, with Regional FSA Director Ward and W. H. Brokaw as principal speakers.

OLEOMARGARINE USE GAINS

Is Replacing Lard and Other Cooking Fats.

WASHINGTON. (AP). The agriculture department declared there was no justification for belief of many dairy farmers that each pound of oleomargarine consumed in this country replaced a pound of butter. The department added much of the oleomargarine replaced lard and other cooking fats rather than butter. Total consumption of oleomargarine in the past three years, the department said, has been the largest on record—an average of three pounds per capita annually compared with a butter consumption of 16.9 pounds.

STUDY LABOR PROBLEM.

FREMONT, Neb. (UP). Township boards from Everett, Ridgeley and Hooper were to meet here for a discussion of possible solutions to Dodge county's WPA labor problem. Chairman E. Rowe of the chamber of commerce civic affairs committee headed a group which met with county supervisors Tuesday to discuss ways and means for providing employment for county relief workers after the holidays.

No Turning

by Kathrn Bemis

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT.

Kay swallowed hard, said in a quivering voice, "No, Chuck—you've misjudged my actions. I didn't mean—to go thru with all that. I—I only wanted you to kiss me—for the last time."

He stared at her in amazment, grew livid with anger.

"You're not the sort of girl who kisses on a dare—or for a thrill. Why did you single me out to be made a fool?"

She was sick with the hurt of his words. She was ashamed.

She said tonelessly. "Please go on—get me home. I'm supposed to return to that dance, you know."

He glanced at her a full second in utter dismay, then turned from her without another word. He slammed in the gears, and the little car sped down the white ribbon of road ahead.

A stiff breeze came in thru the open windows. Kay huddled in her corner of the seat, shivering with cold and hopelessness. Her world had suddenly gone black.

The car wound swiftly around the Millstrom drive and stopped before the big doors of the house. Chuck, his face immobile under the porch light, accompanied Kay into the hall.

"Wait in the library if you like—I think there's a fire in the fireplace," she said over her shoulder, and started upstairs.

She went to her suite, trying in vain to still the tumult racing thru her whole being. Chuck loved her, wanted to marry her!

Instantly now, the weight of her dilemna seemed again too heavy to bear. How long would his love continue when faned by her apparent indifference? There were so many women in the world, so many who would be willing to love him, women who could put themselves in his path.

She hurried out of her damp gown, thoughts swarming in her brain like so many bees, stinging her senses with cruel insistence. She would put on the silvery blue chiffon that Chuck had once greatly admired. He said she looked like a sweet Madonna in it.

No, she mustn't do anything to make him love her any more tonight. She must make every effort to turn his affection from her. He couldn't go on loving her; it was wicked of her to desire it.

He disliked crimson. She had a crimson velvet gown so boldly cut that she had not liked it after purchasing it, and had never worn it. She would put it on now. It would thoroly shock Chuck, put the finishing touches to her night's work.

She had given Jinnie the night out. Jinnie had gone to the suburbs to visit her sister. It would be impossible to hook that crimson velvet gown on herself. So unfortunately—the crimson velvet gown—was out!

Abruptly, she was filled with self-pity. Tears rolled down her cheeks. She stood hesitantly in the center of her gold and white dressing room, knowing that she would not be able to return to that gay party back here in the Comer home.

She must get away—away from Chuck—from Webb. She couldn't face the sympathy and significant glances of the crowd that would result from the fiasco made by her fiance—her revoltingly intoxicated fiance. No! She couldn't see them again tonight.

Now, dressed and ready to go, she hesitated. Then she opened her old ivory desk and scribbled a note to Jinnie, telling her not to worry, telling her that she had gone away for a rest. She placed the note prominently beside the little electric clock on the desk's top. Cora—she would write to her later on the train.

She crept carefully out now thru the dimly lighted back hall, down the servants' stairs, out the servants' entrance in the rear. Cautiously she went across the back lawn to the alley and over to the next street.

A taxi came careening around the corner and she waved the driver to a squeaking stop. Breathlessly, she climbed into his car and asked to be taken to the railroad station.

The taxi swung along at breakneck speed. It was around 12 and the nearly deserted streets made swift travel pleasant thru the pungent, clear night air.

Several times, Kay was on the point of directing the driver to turn back, but checked that impulse resolutely. She visualized Chuck sitting impatiently in the library or pacing the floor in a fit of angry humiliation.

What she had made of herself in his eyes tonight seethed thru her in a wave of rebellion. Accepting his kisses, his love for one short golden moment, then misrepresenting her love for him. What must he think of her now?

Chuck Nourse at dawn awoke shivering in a deep chair before the dead ashes in the Millstrom fireplace, and wondered where he was. He yawned, stretched his arms wide and came thoroly awake.

Then immediately he was alarmed. He had been waiting for Kay—last night. Now, it was daylight. What had happened? Where was Kay?

He stumbled to his feet, went out into the front hall, listened for a sign of life in the big lonely house. He did not know that Kay had put all the servants on a half-day schedule, that they worked only afternoons.

The house seemed filled with the deepest of silence. Nothing in it stirred. It was ghostly in the thin morning light.

Chuck dashed upstairs two steps at a time, calling Kay's name. The echo of his voice was the only answer.

He stood stock still in the upper hall. No servants about—nothing. This was a darned funny piece of business.

He opened the first door he came to, knowing his way about because of his convalescence in this home. This was Kay's suite. Yes—there lying on the floor was the black gown she had worn—as if she had had no time to pick it up. He advanced across the room now on tiptoe, his nerves adjusted to any horrible finding.

He went to her bedroom. The bed hadn't been slept in.

The bath? So many tragedies happened in the bath rooms. But it also revealed no secrets.

He was hurrying back thru the dressing room when he discovered the note propped up on Kay's desk. He read it quickly, without scruple? Jinnie? She was, he remembered, the one person in whom Kay might confide.

"Wonder where Jinnie is," he pondered aloud, thrusting the note into his coat pocket.

Kay had gone? Why? What was she running from? Was she running—from love? She need not have done that—he would have kept out of her way—he wouldn't have annoyed her. It was all so complicated, so foreign for a sensible girl like Kay to act. What did it mean? Would she eventually return and marry Webb? Or was she running away from him?

Well—he would wait here until Jinnie came in. She was evidently to return, or Kay wouldn't have left the note.

He went thoughtfully downstairs and into the music room. He could visualize Kay at the piano. It was too much. He couldn't endure it. He went into the front hall just as Jinnie came in thru a side entrance.

She drew back in alarm, not expecting to see any man, specially one in rumpled dinner clothes, in this house so early in the day.

TWO MEN SENTENCED.

OMAHA. (AP). Merton Pruitt, 38, and Eric Balderson, both of Omaha, were sentenced to six and ten months in jail, respectively, and fined $1 each Wednesday after pleading guilty to being "accessories" in a $500 fur robbery here recently. Earl Hansen, accused by the state as being the perpetrator of the robbery, pleaded not guilty and was remanded to jail to await trial.

FORMER HASTINGS BOY DIES

Gerald Balderston Succumbs to Collision Injuries.

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP). Enroute home after completing his CCC enlistment Tuesday, Gerald W. Balderston, 18, of Yuma, Colo., and formerly of Hastings, Neb., died in a hospital here Tuesday night of automobile accident injuries.

His car collided headon with one driven by A. Alexander, 72, of Greeley, Colo., six miles from here. Alexander was unhurt but Balderston's skull was fractured. Balderston was enroute to his parents' home at Yuma.

Gerald Balderston was born and brought up in Hastings, where his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Schwabauer, and other relatives still live. Mrs. Alex Maul of Lincoln is an aunt. Gerald is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Balderston, and three younger sisters at Yuma. Attending the funeral Friday at Yuma will be his grandmother, three uncles, Ray, Peter and Phil Schwabauer, and an aunt, Mrs. Oscar De Witt, all of Hastings.

HERMAN GOECKE IS DEAD

Was Farmer Near Garland for 25 Years.

Herman Goecke, 83, 546 C, died at his home at 3:05 p. m. Wednesday. A resident of Lincoln for 25 years, he had lived in Nebraska since 1870. Born in Hanover, Germany, Goecke came directly to Seward county when he was 15. He farmed near Garland, Neb., for 25 years before moving to Lincoln. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran church. Surviving are his wife, Augusta, four daughters, Mrs. Ernest Brauer of Malcolm, Mrs. Louis Sieck of Garland, Mrs. George Canalis of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Dallas Brooks of Englewood, Colo.; three sons, Fred of Shell City, Mo., William of Seward, and Herman, jr., of Coeur d'Alene, Ida.; four sisters in Germany, 20 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

REV. A. F. HOWELL DIES

Retired Minister Made Reed Articles as Hobby.

GRAND ISLAND—Rev. A. F. Howell, 78, retired Baptist minister, died here. For 40 years he had been active in the ministry, serving the Table Rock church for 22 years of that period. Later he had a charge at Cedar Falls for a long time. He was proud of the fact that thruout the 40 years he was never "deadheaded," — removed from a church because of failure to hold his congregation. His wife survives.

Rev. A. F. Howell.

Finding time heavy on his hands after retiring, he took up basketry as a hobby. After mastering reed work he taught it to many church women. He himself made more than 1,000 articles of basketry, most of which he gave to the Baptist missionary society to sell to further its work. Missionaries have used many of them in teaching the craft to converts, and others have been exhibited at national shows. Rev. Mr. Howell's baskets won high praise at a national convention of basketmakers in Chicago five years ago. He recommended artistic or educational hobbies "to give people less time to gossip and think about their troubles."

BERNT'S TRIAL CONTINUES

Government Still Examining Witnesses Thursday.

The trial of Julius E. Bernt, charged with misapplication and conspiracy to misapply money of the First National bank of Shelby, went into its fourth day Thursday in federal court. Government counsel was still examining witnesses on the long list of those subpoenaed Monday. John A. Inks, former cashier of the bank, who entered a general plea of guilt on 12 counts Monday, has been subpoenaed as a witness but has not yet appeared on the stand. Attorneys did not indicate whether or not he would be called to testify. Indications are that the trial may run on into the new year.

WILL FOR PROBATE.

Petition for probate of the will of Ida Luers Schneider, who died Dec. 15 was filed in county court Wednesday. Her will left her estate to her daughter Loretta Strauch, Omaha, and the petition asks that the daughter be made administratrix with the will annexed.

PHOTOGRAPHER HELD.

CHUNGKING, China. (AP). J. E. Endicott, Universal newsreel cameraman, of Los Angeles and Philadelphia, was arrested for photographing bomb shelter constructions. He was released later, but his camera was held pending inquiry.

MRS. DULL IS GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury Convicts 'Office Wife' of Shooting Employer; 15 Years Is Limit.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (AP). A circuit jury Wednesday night convicted Mrs. Fern Patricia Dull, blond "office wife" of Attorney William Holbrook, of manslaughter in the shooting of the Benton Harbor (Mich.) lawyer last Oct. 17.

Mrs. Dull showed no emotion as she heard the verdict which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison. Judge Mark D. Taylor said he will pronounce sentence Thursday morning.

H. T. Dewhirst, defense counsel, said he will ask a 15 to 20 day suspension of the sentence to allow time to prepare a motion for a new trial. His request will be argued before the circuit judge pronounces sentence.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (UP). Mrs. Dull was sentenced to 14 to 15 years in the Detroit house of correction.

SHE SWUNG A MEAN AXE

BRIGHTON, Colo. (AP). Miss Martha Jo Norman, 26-year-old teacher, who chased a scantily clad intruder from her rural school house Wednesday by swinging an axe at him, will come after classes are out Thursday to view a suspect. Sheriff Lewis Ballard of Adams county said Miss Norman told him a man, wearing only an overcoat and shoes, entered the Sable school northeast of Denver before the pupils arrived and attempted to attack her.

"Dedicated to the people of Nebraska and to the development of the resources of the state."—Sept. 1, 1867.

There is no place like Nebraska

FIRST MONKEYWRENCH.

The first monkeywrench of any size thrown into the machinery of the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, was that hurled by Argentina. There has been some sand in the gearing. No conference of this sort where there are diverse and to some extent conflicting interests is ever going to move off smoothly and never experience any clashing of the gears, rude application of the brakes, or other protest of abused machinery. Thus far, the disturbances have been minor. A bit of oil applied here and there has kept the machine rolling along smoothly.

Argentina does not care to be patronized by the United States, whether under the guise of taking part in a Pan-American alliance, under the famous Monroe Doctrine, or under no disguise of any kind. Argentina feels big and strong, as it is, and it also feels particular antipathy toward the United States because this country is its most vigorous rival in the world market.

The Argentine grows wheat, some corn, and a great deal of livestock. It has for export, wheat, cattle, beef, wool and a number of other products of the temperate zone. This wheat, beef and wool come in competition with similar products from the United States at every world market. That is annoying, of course. But to make it worse the United States is so troubled by surpluses that it makes distressingly low bids on all such business, much to the Argentine's disgust.

As if this were not enough, the United States wants to "protect" all of Latin America. That is more than the Argentine can bear. The residents of that country feel much as we would if Canada would propose protecting all of North America from European aggression. We would resent a proposal of that kind as Argentina resents the Monroe doctrine or any alliance under which the United States would pose as a big brother to other American countries.

The Argentine may not seriously fear that the United States would abuse or bully South American countries, but as long as this country is such a formidable rival it is not at all unnatural to feel resentment to any move of this kind and to oppose it.

So Argentina hurls the first wrench and the conference is halted, at least temporarily.

BAR INTEGRATION.

The experiment of an integrated bar in Nebraska has not been in progress for a sufficient time to test its results, but the idea is spreading in other states. The main purpose sought to be achieved is to raise professional standards and conduct and thus give to the lawyer the standing that his abilities and activities in a community entitle him to possess. Since the bar was integrated in Nebraska there has been a noticeable quickening of interest in the aims outlined, and apparently there is a widespread opinion among the leaders that at last they have an instrument which can be used not only to rid the profession of undesirables but to accomplish reforms in court procedure that will gain for it public approbation.

As one of the committees reporting to the state association says, with conditions as they exist, changes in judicial administration are going to be made, and if the bar does not act to secure this reform the laity will sooner or later undertake it. He referred to the fact that many lawyers have too often forgotten that it is the delay in procedure, the technicalities of pleading and the complexities of practice that have heaped hot coals of condemnation on the attorneys rather than on the courts.

The type of committee reports submitted shows the depth of interest being taken in the work on hand, indicating as they do a lot of unselfish labor.

Arkansas is the latest recruit to the integrated bar movement. There the lawyers voted 93 percent in favor of it, but two efforts to secure legislative action failed. The supreme court, unlike that of Nebraska, declined to use its inherent power to that end. Finally the lawyers submitted to the people at the November election a constitutional amendment that the supreme court be empowered to make rules regulating the practice and professional conduct of lawyers, and it carried overwhelmingly.

WHEN STEPHENS SCORED.

Retirement of Dan V. Stephens from his bank in Fremont recalls another part of his career during which he served his district in congress. Mr. Stephens as a public speaker had many admirers. He was direct, thoughtful, always gracious.

Nebraska friends saw him placed in a position that tested his powers as an orator one night in Atlantic City. The old "million dollar pier" there was filled to capacity by an audience of school superintendents. Dan Stephens was to have been the speaker of the evening. He had just returned from an official visit to the then most interesting spot, for Americans, in all the world—the western front, in war time.

Two things conspired to make his position difficult. The audience had been listening to speeches since nine that morning. Again, as often happened in those days, some one had been sent down from Washington "with an important message" for which no previous arrangement had been made. Presiding officers had little choice. They must let the speaker of unknown ability talk, upon an unknown subject, or take the chance of having the group pronounced unpatriotic.

Mr. Stephens was introduced at 10 o'clock at night. His friends could hear the movement of hundreds of feet in the aisles. This movement of a tired audience is the dread of every public speaker.

A little group of Nebraskans standing in the rear wondered if he could hold that tired audience. With characteristic frankness, Mr. Stephens met the crisis. He realized the lateness of the hour, that the audience was tired and uncomfortable, and said he would excuse those who felt they must meet other engagements, but he added, "I come to you from an experience such as but few have had. It has been given to me to see the armies of the allies in the actual process of trying to save humanity. In that process this country has elected to take some part and is today taking over an increasing share of the burden. What I saw I shall tell you and together we can reason out what the result of America's presence on the western front is likely to be."

The exodus ended. The crowd remained to hear the story. About 11 o'clock, after Mr. Stephens had been talking for an hour, a Nebraskan said to the others, "Let's sit down. He has them so interested now we could not drag them away." Mr. Stephens had gained one of his many triumphs.

Chiang Kai-Shek is reported to be forcing the United States and Great Britain into China's support by putting to them squarely the issue of maintenance of a free and independent country. Ordinarily these two countries would see this proposition alike and in a predictable manner. But one cannot be certain of reactions now. China might look at Ethiopia. There was a free and independent country. England made no move to maintain it as such. The same goes for Czechoslovakia. If the Chinese leader thinks England is going to go to bat for China after permitting these two countries to be enslaved, he is not facing all the facts. And if he thinks the United States is going to war for China he may be mistaken there also. The United States' concern in China seems restricted to commercial interests and while it is impossible to say how far this country will go in behalf of China, it might be surprising to many to learn what the Japs may do there without serious objection from this country.

The arrest of approximately 1,000 alleged spies, some estimates run as high as 3,000, in Spanish insurgent ranks, shows a serious disintegration of rebel morale. In the first place if spies are found in such large numbers the disturbance is a revolt rather than a spy scare. And in the second place, the arrests were made by Franco's secret police, showing his devotion to fascist methods and indicating a serious revolt against them. Franco cannot expect to keep the loyalty of his followers when he has secret police operating within his army and that he has failed to maintain the confidence of the army is manifest by 1,000 arrests.

Iceland is reported to be sweltering in unseasonably warm weather while Europe is suffering unusual cold. Where the temperature usually remains below freezing from October until late spring, it has reached 45 degrees and farmers have been working the soil. Iceland feels that for the moment at least it is misnamed.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL.

Nebraska Citians are in difficult lot. They began by demanding George Heinke for congress. Their demand was granted by the voters of the First district. Now they are demanding congress for George Heinke. The Rotary club of that city has outlined a program for Heinke. They want him to balance the budget. They want the taxes taken off all corporations and all necessities. They would abolish every nuisance tax. They want a new postoffice and a new arboretum and a free bridge. They want a job for their unemployed, a private job, if you please, at good pay. They want the old age people to get $45 a month and they want a new $50,000 swimming pool. They want more rain next season, good crops and the prosperity of 1929 returned. They are demanding rural electrification at a low rate and all of the electrical appliances that go with it. They want the price of motorcars reduced so that every Otoe county man can have two cars in his garage and two chickens in every pot. They are making other demands, but they haven't all been listed.

Heinke told his friends who gathered in an honor demonstration Wednesday night that he was leaving for Washington early next week. His secretary, Hyde Sweet, will leave a few days later. The selection of Hyde Sweet for secretary came as a surprise to Nebraska City, altho it should be emphasized that it was a pleasing surprise. Heinke and Sweet agree violently on some issues and disagree vociferously on others. They are entirely frank with each other. Both men possess an ample store of will power, and both men know how to use it. They should make a hard working, hard pulling, effective team. Friends expressed regret that Sweet would have to do his editorial work from Washington, but they also indicated the hope that he might dig up a few new stories down there.

At the meeting it was pointed out that this is the first time Otoe county has ever had a congressman. It has had a member of the cabinet, under Cleveland, and a republican senator, M. L. Hayward. The farewell to the congressman and his secretary was a happy affair.

Wednesday almost everybody was worrying about the prospect for a "green" Christmas. It snowed Wednesday night and the earth was covered with white Thursday morning. That, however, did not satisfy. The fear was expressed by almost every worrier that the snow would melt before Christmas. Anyhow, this territory had an inch or more of snow.

The Hastings Spotlight thinks it has a joke on the federal writers project of the WPA which is writing a history of Nebraska. It includes Idaho Bill, now a resident of Hastings, as one of the colorful characters of the past, along with Buffalo Bill and like denizens of the plains. The Spotlight says he was a farm youth who let his hair grow and took to wearing cowboy boots.

"Bingo games will feature tonight's activities for the Union," said a recent issue of the Daily Nebraskan. Bingo is a mild form of gambling that should be frowned upon. It is not a part of the higher education that Nebraska offers to its young thru the state university. "Bingo" should be discouraged not only at the Student Union building but in every place where the University of Nebraska exercises any degree of control.

Omaha lawyers are organizing an assessment accident company which will sell policies only to attorneys. The popularity of the proposal cannot be measured, however, until it is discovered whether the policies cover the loss of cases, which is the worst accident that happens to the best of practitioners.

FOOTNOTES.

"If and when the Iowa-Nebraska becomes the property of districts created by the state, after purchase financed by revenue bonds, will the various governmental units in which the property is located be able to tax that property?" asks the Beatrice Sun. Then it continues:

"That is a fair question and an important one in view of the magnitude of the whole withdrawal of the property from the tax rolls would make in the public revenues. The answer to it is a vague hint that the districts plan to make provision for paying to the various governmental units the amount of taxes which the private company has been paying. Just how the amount of such payment is to be determined has not been indicated. Other private property is not taxed at a fixed amount over a period of years but at different amounts depending upon local levies.

"Some of the cities impose occupation taxes upon the private utilities. Beatrice is one which exacts such a tax. Will the power districts, when they take over control of the utilities properties, continue paying these occupation taxes? And if they do pay them will they pay one kind of a municipal tax in one city and not in another city? There is vagueness also in the hint the power districts have given to quiet the League of Municipalities and others favoring municipal ownership. The state law which authorized the creation of the power districts provides that such a district cannot sell any property which it has acquired. Municipal ownership advocates ask whether this means that the cities cannot acquire by purchase the utilities by which they are served, once they are taken over by the power districts.

"The answer to this question is that the power districts have no desire to go into the business of retailing electric current and will join with the cities in getting the law amended so that a power district can sell to a municipality the utility property within the city. This is not a definite part of any contract and it could not be binding upon anyone. It is a promise on the part of persons now holding office by election under a state law to get the legislature to change the law. There is no means of guaranteeing that the legislature would comply if the request were made.

"The whole deal for the power districts to take over the private utilities has been veiled in mystery. A more frank disclosure of the terms of the transfer would give the citizens, whose light bills are to be mortgaged to pay the revenue bonds and interest and commissions, a better opportunity to decide where their interests lie. Some hurried moves are being made in a number of cities to go into municipal ownership and operation of utilities which now serve them if the latter are to be sold. A foggy confusion obscures the details of a transaction which is of vital interest to all. This should not be necessary and it surely is not desirable. Any deal of the magnitude of this one should be defensible on its merits and these should be presented by a full disclosure of facts."

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Q. Who are the Noble Guards?

A. The Noble Guards is the highest ranking corps of the papal military service. It originated in the Cavelleggieri (light cavalry) which formed the mounted guards of the popes. Reorganized several times, it assumed its present name under Pius VII, 1815, new regulations being given by Leo XIII. The pope appoints the commander, always a Roman prince, and all members must show a 60 year line of nobility recognized in the papal states. Their only public appearance is with the pope at public functions. The privilege of conveying the tidings to newly appointed cardinals belongs exclusively to them.

Q. Please quote "I Am the Printing Press" by Bob Davis.

A. I am the printing press, born of the mother earth. My heart is of steel, my limbs are of iron, and my fingers are of brass. I sing the songs of the world, the oratorios of history, the symphonies of all time. I am the voice of today, the herald of tomorrow. I weave into the warp of the past the woof of the future. I tell the stories of peace and war alike. I make the human heart beat with passion or tenderness. I stir the pulse of nations, and make brave men do better deeds, and soldiers die. . . . I am the laughter and tears of the world, and I shall never die until all things return to the immutable dust. I am the printing press.

Q. What operas were written by the Russian composer, Borodin?

A. Prince Igor is his only opera.

Q. What was the earliest sales tax in this country?

A. A form of sales tax was levied by the federal government as early as 1794. In that year, at the instance of Alexander Hamilton, a tax was placed on property sold at auction. A similar tax had been imposed by Lord North in England to help meet the expenses of carrying on the war against the American colonies. In this country the levy produced little revenue and was repealed in 1800. It was revived for several years as an emergency measure during the War of 1812, but collections depended entirely on the conscience of the auctioneers and evasions were notorious.

Q. How many kinds of kangaroos are there?

A. There are about 50 species of kangaroos, belonging to 12 or 15 genera. The largest are as tall as a man and weigh 150 pounds. The smallest are not as big as a rabbit. One of the most interesting species is the tree climbing kangaroo discovered in Queensland. The giant kangaroo can kill a man or a dog with one slash of the big toe claw.

Q. Do many people in New York City still live in tenements?

A. There are approximately 2,000,000 living in tenements.

Q. What is the salary of the governor of Texas?

A. It is $12,000 a year.

Q. How many deaths and injuries result from accidents in the home?

A. In 1937, according to the National Safety council, there were 32,500 deaths resulting from home accidents, while 4,700,000 persons suffered from non-fatal injuries sustained in the home.

DAVID LAWRENCE.

WASHINGTON.—Something far more important to the future democracy of the United States than whether President Roosevelt shall or shall not be a candidate for a third term is likely to develop out of the current discussion of a resolution of the United States senate whereby third terms for presidents are to be aprpoved or disapproved.

Much confusion has arisen over the jockeying of various members of the senate. Some of them who do not want to face the third term issue frankly say it is desirable for the senate to mind its own business and let the people decide the question. Others insist that the senate should express itself lest an important tradition be broken. It goes without saying that most all the republicans will vote for the ban on third terms and many of the democrats will feel embarrassed and finally will line up in accordance as their votes may affect their own political fortunes in 1940.

But the real issue is not whether Mr. Roosevelt should have a third term. Anybody who wants to urge that there be written into the constitution a prohibition against third terms is free to do so, but, on the other hand, there is actually no legal or constitutional barrier against a third term. To adopt a resolution on the subject now, as in the past, is merely a means of expressing personal opposition to one man who may or may not be looking ambitiously toward a third nomination. Some of those who now are urging the third term taboo by resolution have hardly calculated what might be the effect if, by chance, the friends of Mr. Roosevelt succeeded in lining up enough votes actually to defeat the resolution.

Such a development would be hailed by the Roosevelt supporters as an indication that the senate approved of third terms and as a clear track for the third term nomination. Instead of being a hindrance, it might be really a help for the Roosevelt forces.

Any move which is aimed at one man or his own personal political future is bound to come a cropper in the long run. Anything which is based on principle is bound to be received with respect.

Thus, the true issue is not whether Mr. Roosevelt shall have a third term, but whether any president of the United States shall be permitted directly or indirectly or thru the activities of federal officeholders to be nominated to succeed himself. The passage of a law to cover this subject is clearly the business of the senate of the United States and the business of the house of representatives, too.

The most emphatic expression on this subject is that which came from the pen of Woodrow Wilson in February, 1913, when, as president-elect, he was asked by the majority leader of the house, the late A. Mitchell Palmer, for his views on a proposal then being made to limit presidential tenure to a single term of six years. Mr. Wilson opposed the idea and suggested that the two-term limitation of four years each be written into the constitution. Speaking of the six-year single term proposal, Mr. Wilson said:

"The argument for it rests upon temporary conditions which can easily be removed by law. Presidents, it is said, are effective for one-half of their term only because they devote their attention during the last two years of the term to building up the influences, and above all, the organization by which they hope and purpose to secure a second nomination and election.

"It is their illicit power, not their legitimate influence with the country that the advocates of constitutional change profess to be afraid of, and I heartily sympathize with them. It is intolerable that any president should be permitted to determine who should succeed him—himself or another—by patronage or coercion, or by any sort of control of the machinery by which delegates to the nominating conventions are chosen."

Mr. Wilson recommended in vain a law for presidential primary elections and a plan to abolish nominating conventions. He wanted the people to make nominations by direct vote. As recently as the last session of congress, efforts were made to prohibit officeholders from sitting in the national conventions, but the senate killed the proposal. Likewise, the bills to forbid WPA activity in politics failed of passage.

So the real problem is whether congress will assure honest elections and a system of honest nominating so that the party in power will not be able to perpetuate its hold on government thru a political oligarchy of any kind. Action by the senate forbidding governmental agencies to engage in politics either directly or indirectly or to have a voice in the selection of a president in a party convention touches more nearly the crux of the difficulty than a mere ban on third terms. For there are lots of people who cannot see much difference between senators who serve for three and four and even five terms, or governors of states who serve three and four terms, and the presidency. What is more important is how a third nomination or election is obtained by the man who happens to be in control of the governmental machinery. It's a broader question than one man's political opportunity or ambition.

DR. BRADY'S HEALTH TALK.

A Thousand Night Blind Guinea Pigs.

If you have more than ordinary difficulty in seeing clearly in a dim light or at dusk or for a remarkably long time after entering a dark room from the bright sunshine, listen. If you are blinded more than other members of your family or more than your friends riding with you, by the headlamps of approaching cars when you drive at night, pay heed. If you are more awkward when moving about your sleeping room at night than you should be, so that you bark your shin, stub your toe or crash odds and ends of furniture or bricabrac which have been placed in your path on purpose since you last passed that way, you swear, and how you swear, this article ought to interest you mildly. Oh, not that you need bestir yourself to do anything about it. But it may be something to think about if sometime you reach a void altho apparently still conscious—just on dead center. Lots of minds are caught that way when the radio breaks down. If you do believe you are a nyctalope, yet still wish to regain normal vision if possible, the information herein contained may show you the way. I don't know. In fact I am skeptical about the whole thing. But it is the latest word of science on the subject, and I am willing to suspend judgment on the point until, say, a thousand night-blind human guinea pigs try it out and tell us whether there is anything in it.

Most impressive evidence in support of the conception of night blindness from vitamin A deficiency is that observation of Aykroyd's which I have quoted here more than once (Vitamins and Other Dietary Essentials, by W. R. Aykroyd, M. D., Heinemann, Ltd., London):

"The writer has sometimes given Newfoundland fishermen, victims of night-blindness, a single tablespoonful of cod liver oil, with the gratifying result that they were able to see on the subsequent night. There are, one fears, few other remedies in medicine so rapid and reliable."

Oh, I don't know. I have witnessed some amazingly prompt recoveries from disabling maladies when various modes of administering castor oil were described inadvertently within hearing of little Johnny. Maybe those Newfoundland chaps were not exactly fond of fish liver oil. But even if the remedy cured the night blindness, it doesn't prove that vitamin A was the curative principle, for cod liver oil contains also sunshine vitamin D.

That is the fault with practically all of the experimental as well as the empirical evidence relating to this question. How do the investigators reach the conclusion that vitamin A (or lack of it) is the essential factor, when sunshine vitamin D (or lack of it) is also concerned?

If a thousand readers of this who are subject to nyctalopia, night blindness, difficulty of seeing in a dimly lighted room or in the dusk or on a dull cloudy day or against traffic glare, will test the thing by taking a capsule of 25,000 units of vitamin A and no vitamin D or anything else with it, morning, noon and night for a month—or three capsules daily at one dose if preferred—and report their experience, we ought to have a fairly good idea as to whether vitamin A has anything to do with night blindness. But remember, you are not doing this as a favor to me. I don't care whether you choose to remain blind or recover. I am suggesting the experiment as a favor to you.

Cheap Living for Spanish-American Veterans When in the Home.

MILFORD.—In answer to a letter in Wednesday's Journal, "Every soldier to his home state," I would like to say that the Spanish-American veteran is drawing a $60 a month pension when out of the home, but his wife and himself can come in and still draw $50. The state furnishes a home, meals, laundry, doctor service and houses both for $10 a month. A person would not be in his right mind to pass a thing like that. Congressmen should see that the government pays the state the amount it costs to support a man in the regular army. Now everyone can enter the federal home. Of course they will have to obey rules.

Kellenbarger of Anselmo Suggests How a Change Should be Made.

ANSELMO.—As reported in The Journal, the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation in a resolution favored an amendment to the present county farm bureau law that will provide that paid memberships rather than petitions and elections be the basis for a county appropriation for extension work.

The law needs changing but not as suggested. May we suggest that the law be amended that the title of county extension service be substituted for the words, county farm bureau. That part of the law which specifies that the basis for county appropriation be by petition and election should be left unchanged. The latter basis is the fair and open way of handling the matter.

County agents do the local end of the extension work. The title of county extension service would be mor appropriate than the title county farm bureau and it would eliminate the present confusion between the relation of the work of the county extension and the Farm Bureau federation which is one of the three big farm organizations.

Her Housework Was Such A Drudgery Feeling As She Did

Muscles Were So Sore and Stiff Over Her Body She Could Hardly Get Around At Times; Tired, Sluggish Feeling Made Mrs. Fuhrer Miserable; Then KruGon's Action Surprised Her.

"Only those who have personally tried KruGon can appreciate its true value," said Mrs. Herman G. Fuhrer, Route No. 1, Box 54, Walton, Nebraska (near Lincoln), a respected local lady who has lived here for the past forty years, recently in a praising statement reaching the Raymond Bauer Drug Co., N & 13th Street, this city:

MRS. HERMAN FUHRER.

"Constipation was the beginning of my ill health and it grew rapidly until I was hardly able to get around," continued Mrs. Fuhrer. "Those intestinal poisons so affected my system that I felt tired, worn-out and sluggish all of the time. There were many nights I could not get my rest and felt worse in the mornings than upon going to bed the nights before. Then all of a sudden those awful aches and pains developed and settled over my body. My muscles became so stiff and sore and to do my housework in my condition was next to an impossibility. Life itself was fast becoming an awful drudgery in my condition and in spite of all I tried I only grew steadily worse. I don't know what I would have done if it had not been for this KruGon.

"I had heard of many of the accomplishments of this KruGon before I began its use and today I would not be without it if it was at all possible for me to get it," continued Mrs. Fuhrer. "I had been discouraged in many medicines I had tried, but not in KruGon. From the first it eliminated those intestinal poisons from my body and I soon showed rapid improvement generally. I began to sleep good at night, get my rest and awaken of a morning refreshed and feeling fine. Then that awful soreness and stiffness left my muscles and my work was a pleasure rather than a burden. I now eat good, that tired, listless feeling does not bother me either and I cannot praise KruGon half enough. It is one medicine suffering people should become acquainted with."

KruGon is sold by Raymond Bauer Drug Co., N & 13th Sts., Lincoln, and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

Marriage Meddlers

A Sequal to "Married Comrades"

By Adele Garrison

Synopsis: Confronted with two problems that have arisen over the secret reunion of her niece, Mary Veritzen, and her husband, Noel, in a New York hotel, which she arranged, Madge Graham is heartened by the appearance of her husband, Dicky, on the scene. Her first problem, that of persuading Noel to permit Mary to continue her training for a role in a new show being produced by Noel's father, Philip Veritzen, while he is with her, seems more certain of solution when Dicky agrees to help Madge talk to Noel about it. But her second problem, to keep the elder Veritzen from locating Mary and Noel, and hoodwink him into believing they had gone to visit friends on the New Jersey coast, does not appear so easy. In desperation, Madge asks Dicky if he has any friends in New Jersey. Replying that he knows "loads of people" there, Dicky voices his bewilderment as to how that would help Madge solve her problem.

As Dicky said that he knew "loads of people" in South Jersey, I felt my spirits lighten perceptibly, for with his resourcefulness and ingenuity back of me, I was sure that I could outwit Philip Veritzen.

"I'll tell you presently how it's going not only to help me, but to solve my whole problem," I told him. "But, tell me: Do you know anyone of them well enough to ask them to stage a deception for you?"

"There's a magazine editor in a secluded country home down there by the ocean that would stage anything short of a murder for me. And I'm not so sure he wouldn't try that once. He knows I'd do the same for him any time he gave me the office."

I am so used to Dicky's extravagances of speech that I did not protest the terrifying implications of this speech as I would have done in the first years of our marriage. Instead, I smiled at him, and voiced the joyous relief I felt.

Reveals Veritzen's Plans.

"Then everything will be all right, am sure," I said. "By the way, I didn't tell you that Philip Veritzen is coming up to the city this morning, breathing fire and brimstone in his determination to find us. Miss Whitlock last night answered his insistent demand over the telephone by telling him that Mary and I had gone to South Jersey to the home of friends by the seashore. She said—by my direction—that we had gone in such a hurry that I had not left her my address, and that until I sent it, she could not tell him where we were."

"It was the only thing you could do," Dicky commented, "but it sure will be gall and wormwood and all the rest of the bitter herbs to old Phil. However, that's not the question at present. Now, this pal of mine, Thorp, is just made to order for this. In the first place, he hasn't a telephone—hates all modern things. In the second place, it's harder to get into his place—for a stranger—than it is to crash the pearly gates. I'll take a run down there tonight, put him wise, give him a letter which you will write to Miss Whitlock, apologizing and giving your address, and saying you will be back shortly, and expressing your joy at Mary's improvement—you know the dope—and which I will ask him to mail tomorrow afternoon. She will get it the next morning, show it to Phil, and he'll be off in that direction as fast as a limousine will take him. The same day, you and Mary will double back to the Lansfield with your luggage, and Noel will beat it to the farm. When old Phil gets back, having been told by Thorp that you went home earlier in the day, you will be back at the hotel, and be ready to take whatever beating he has in store for you. How does that strike you?"

Miss Whitlock Calls.

"Perfect, simply perfect!" I said enthusiastically. "Now if poor Miss Whitlock can only hold the fort firmly."

I told him of the privacy which she could have at her friend's apartment when she telephoned and had barely finished when the telephone sounded again.

"There she is now, I fancy," I said as I picked up the receiver. But this time my hands were not shaking. Dicky's arrival and his air of superb confidence had done wonders for me. I felt equal to facing a regiment of Philip Veritzens.

"He's here!" Miss Whitlock said when we had gone thru a routine of platitudes calculated to disarm any possible curiosity of the telephone operator concerning our colloquy. "And is he fit to be tied!"

"Careful what you say!" I admonished. "You are telephoning from your friend's apartment, I assume."

"Yes, and I am sure it is all right."

I knew she meant she had succeeded in eluding the detectives trailing her, and my mental barometer ascended another degree.

"Good!" I answered. "Now, listen carefully. Send me no more letters. Do not telephone unless it is absolutely necessary. Day after tomorrow you will receive a letter from me, postmarked from South Jersey, which will explain itself. You may take it literally, as it is written. And please show it to the person we both know. Mary and I will be back in the afternoon of the same day you receive the letter, but do not tell the person that. We will make that a little surprise. And, don't worry! Stick to what you have told him. Don't weaken, no matter what he says! But telephone me if, in your opinion, it is really necessary."

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON.

Dear Mary Gordon: I would like to join some lodge or club in Lincoln but don't know what one to join or how to get in touch with them.

The paper gives a list of them but I would like to know how to find out more about them. There's only a few listed in the telephone directory.

If possible I would like to join one where men and women both belong and one that has dances—as I enjoy dancing. And also where it wouldn't cost over two dollars a month to belong.—Thank You.

A. The only way to find out about the various lodges is to inquire of their members. When you see a name listed, in connection, telephone the person and tell him or her frankly you are looking for a group to join. Most of them want to increase their lists of desirable members.

Dear Mary Gordon: I've been having an awful life, been married for 19 years and never have had but two or three little rooms to live in and never furnishings to amount to anything. I've always worked hard before my marriage and also after. While I worked I saved my earnings for household goods and never to this day have anything. I've told him I would not put up with it any longer, that I was leaving to find work. I have the two children, a girl 18 and a boy 8. Of course I'd take the boy with me. Wonder if you would advise me where I could find employment.

My husband always seems to have money to spend in the saloon but not for things for a home.—Discouraged.

A. This is not a very good time to start out looking for work, since so many people are out of work and other losing their WPA jobs. A capable housekeeper can always find work, but frequently it takes time to land the job. Watch the ads, tell your friends, register at the Y. W. C. A.

Sweet Potato Soup.

3 cups mashed sweet potatoes
1 2-3 cups irradiated evaporated milk
1 tbsp butter
2 cups water
¾ tsp salt
Dash of mace
Dash of black pepper

Boil sweet potatoes in jackets until tender, but not mushy. Skin and mash, or run thru a coarse sieve while hot. Add remaining ingredients to mashed sweet potatoes. Stir while heating, or heat over boiling water. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Goodnight Stories

BY MAX TELL.

"Suppose," little Frank was saying to his father, "suppose Santa Claus comes to a house and there isn't any chimney—how does he get in to leave any presents?"

"I was wondering about that, too," his sister, Dinah, added.

Knarf and Hanid, the shadows of the two children, who were sitting comfortably on the floor, were glad that the two children had asked this question. It had always puzzled them just as much as it did the children. They waited for father to answer.

Father smiled. "Santa always finds a way to get in a house no matter whether there is a chimney or not."

"But how does he?"

"You'll see."

Later Knarf said to Hanid: "I'm going to find out exactly how Santa gets into houses without chimneys."

"Yes, but how?"

"Just come with me and you'll see what I mean."

So Hanid slipped off with Knarf. Together they glided thru the house, quite noiselessly and without attracting any attention. Finally they reached the kitchen. Then Knarf crawled under the oven. There, against the warm back wall, lay Mrs. Cat, sleepily purring. Knarf tugged at her whiskers gently and she opened her eyes.

"Christmas night is different."

"Ah! hello. I was just taking a little cat-nap. Lie down a moment and rest. It's very pleasant back here, isn't it?"

"We haven't time to rest," Knarf said promptly.

"We came to ask you a very important question," said Hanid.

"Indeed! What do you want to know? I'll be glad to answer it if I can."

"You stay up all night, don't you?" Knarf said.

Mrs. Cat purred, which was as much as saying that she did.

"Then you'll be able to tell us this: How does Santa Claus manage to get into houses with his big bag of toys when there aren't any chimneys for him to slide down?"

"Christmas night is different," she said, "I don't know why it is, but it is just the same. Try as I will to keep awake, I can't do it. You see, everything is so peaceful about the house on Christmas eve. It is so warm and pleasant and I've had so many good things to eat during the day that there just isn't any use in staying up. So even tho I try, I really don't try very hard."

"Oh!" said the shadows.

"I just curl myself up in a snug place and don't stir until Christmas morning. And do you know what I've heard?"

"What?"

"That on the night before Christmas not a single creature in the whole house stirs, not even a mouse. So I really can't tell you how Santa Claus gets in. But he does—and that's the important thing, isn't it?"

WAS FALSE ALARM.

SAN FRANCISCO. (UP). Shoppers stopped and screamed and police cars dashed thru the streets when a man stood on the edge of the roof of the furniture exchange waving his arms as tho to clear the streets for a suicide leap. A policeman reaching the roof learned the man was an electrician "trying to get that dumb helper of mine to shift that cord along over to the next pole for Christmas lights."

For a Bigger and Better Christmas Give MUSETTE

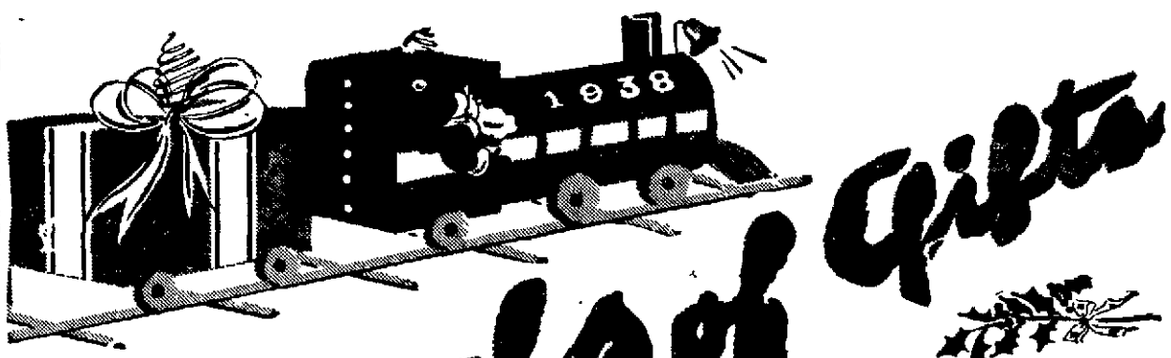

Musette $345

Imagine your family's joy on Christmas morn in discovering that Santa Claus has left this beautiful, modern piano beside the tree. The MUSETTE is so low and so charmingly graceful it fits in anywhere. Less than a yard high! Occupies less floor space than a 2'x5' rug! And RESOTONIC Construction not only gives this instrument surprising volume but brings out the full tonal beauty of every note. 9 brilliantly styled Period Models. You owe it to yourself to SEE, HEAR and PLAY the RESOTONIC MUSETTE before buying any piano.

"The Holy Terror"

The Story of a World Dictator

By H. G. WELLS

He had been what is called a "spoilt" child, the favored younger brother, and he was still essentially "Lord Horry." He had one of those faces whose features seem asymmetrical and confused when seen in front, but which have a certain resemblance to handsomeness in profile; he was pale, freckled and red haired, with the rebellious forelock so frequent with romantic personalities, and his voice was arrogant and adenoidal. He carried himself with a certain solemn haughtiness, breathing heavily, with a projected chest balanced stiffly against a projected behind. At first he had proposed himself as the rising hope of the liberal party; but in those days very little was left of the liberal party except rising hopes; many of them were already middle aged and they had shown very clearly that an addition to their numbers wolud be unwelcome. He was an imperious rather than a patient wooer and so he had transferred his proffer of leadership almost convulsively to the communist wing of the labor party.

Here again his reception was inadequate; the labor party did not seem to realize in the least, what an accession this splendid and brilliant young aristocrat would be to its all too pedestrian front, and while he was still reluctantly realizing this poverty of the leftist imagination, the successes of Mussolini and the nazis gave a new turn to his ambitions. He became the sedulous student and ape of the Italian and German adventurers, not realizing that there was a certain incongruity between their methods and formulae and the peculiar large scepticism of the Anglo-Saxon tradition, with its lamentable disposition toward facetiousness on serious occasions.

What was more natural than for the rejected romantic leader of the reds to invert himself in another swift transformation, become an antired, and stretch out his strong right arm to protect the rich old ladies of the land from the red horror? They responded to his heroic gesture with copious subscriptions and profuse press support. Lord Thunderclap and all the Daily Clarion group of newspapers hailed him with enthusiasm. He was speedily in a position to provide headquarters, highly decorative purple shirts, brown belts and a sense of purpose to a perceptible following of unemployed young men. So far as the police would let him—and at first they let him quite a lot if only on account of his rank—he organized a series of demonstrations against the reds, and he induced the Jews to advertise him by a campaign of annoyance and menace against these far too responsive, expressive people.

So it was Lord Horatio after his abortive explorations of the alternative avenues to the left of life, made his definitive entrance upon the political scene from the right. No further transformation was possible for him for there was nothing more for him to copy. He was now past the first blush and beauty of youth and he found himself in a bright limelight of expectation. For a time—indeed until the dynastic trouble about the duke of Windsor in 1937 superseded him—the first question the traveling Englishman was asked was "What is this new man, Lord Bohun, going to do?"

To which the more intelligent Englishman said, "He isn't much of a man and he isn't going to do anything."

"But that's what they said of Hitler."

"But Hitler was a national growth and Bohun isn't even a growth. . . ."

What the less intelligent Englishman said about him varied, and anyhow it does not matter now.

There he was upon the British scene in a nimbus of expectation. He took large halls and addressed meetings at which he regurgitated the masticated leading articles of the opposition press—and more particularly those of the Daily Clarion. He never made an original remark, he never coined a phrase of his own, not even, by accident. He organized processions, which had a diminishingly irritating effect, in Jewish districts. Nothing eevr ensured from the meetings and processions except a dribble of police court proceedings that died away. Then he would pass out of the headlines for a space and then again would come another great and entirely vacuous meeting and another temporary obstruction in the streets.

Slowly, incredulously, the world realized that Lord Horatio was doing nothing and did not know how to do anything. But he kept up his movement with all the dignity of Tristram Shandy's bull.

He was too vain and jealous to associate any original or vigorous intelligence with himself. Helpful people of initiative and ambition joined him only to drop off disappointed. Instead he gathered about himself parasitic adherents of impeccable dullness, and he organized a wonderful "training school" of popular socialist speakers. They were given little books of pros and cons—remarkable pros and cons—and general advice. But it is hard to train men to meet the unexpected interruption. These trained and paid supporters did not so much speak at his meetings as imitate speaking. They learned the sounds and gestures of demonstration and conviction, but nothing more. They brought down the emphatic fist upon the suffering palm in the vain hope of giving platitude the flavor of inspiration, and a few determined interrupters could make a dreadful mess of them.

Sometimes Lord Horatio was out of the papers for weeks at a time, and then he would be back again, delivering the same old speech and demonstrating nothing by the same old demonstration. He was especially prevalent in spring. May and June seemed to excite him. It looked as tho he was destined to become a seasonal feature in English life like the Royal academy or the boat race. Whenever there was a socialist or pacifist or communist gathering or indeed any sort of mass meeting, the purple banners of the popular socialists with their golden tassels turned up in slowly dwindling force, always under almost excessive police protection, and always making a scuffling rather than triumphant exit from the field of debate.

The nimbler years slipped by and even his loyalist adherents were forced to realize the progressive ravages of middle age upon his former fatuous elan. His pogroms, such as they were, lost pep. The Daily Clarion ceased to feature him. It did not so much turn against him as fade away from him. It looked as tho he and his popular socialists were going to sit down and fade out altogether. This sessile disposition on the part of their leader was a source of grave discontent to many of the youngsters who had got into belts and purple shirts and broken their adolescent voices shouting "We want Bo-oo-un" in those so much more promising early days. More and more he had to rely on the subsidized element in his following. More and more did the growing tension of the super armament period emphasize his essential unreality, his amateurism.

At one or two of his recent meetings unidentified and disregarded voices had cried out "Get on with it!"

The world situation darkened. The sense of impending catastrophe increased. All over the world it was felt that the now-or-never moment was approaching. There was a sort of paralysis of grim expectation. In 1940 the chief employment of human leisure was antiaircraft drill; a quarter of a million bombers were in commission, and everywhere men excavated. Political life changed its character. Political thought intensified. The taste for mild rioting was declining under a burthen of apprehensive responsibility. The newspapers bore anxiety on their foreheads.

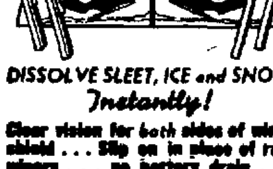

The publics in the old democratic countries had had the educational spectacle of a decade of blustering dictatorship in Europe. They were capable now of immense skepticisms and increasingly resistant to the vague promises of merely personal leadership. "You are antibolshevik and anti-Jew, you declare the government is corrupt and incompetent and so forth, and that's all very acceptable," said the mind of the common man. "But what are you going to make and what are you going to do if we put you in power?"

Beneath Bohun's feet, at his headquarters, the germs of a "ginger group" stirred and grew. Out of deference to his ruddy forelock it called itself "Real Ginger." It desired a program, a creed. It desired explicitness. It took a definite form in Steenhold's flat one evening when, after a dissertation of Rud's, certain letters of power, namely "B. M. G." were pronounced. Which letters being interpreted signified no longer "Balfour must go" as they had originally done—but "Bohun." And the man who said them was Rogers.

He hit his knees with his fist, he said the mystical letters and glared around him.

WATER ASSOCIATION ASKS HEARING DELAY

Claims Interests of Landowners in Platte Valley Are Jeopardized.

GRAND ISLAND. (AP). The Platte River Water Protective association was on record along with eight eastern Nebraska towns, Governor Cochran and Senator Burke with a bid for postponement of the federal power commission hearing Thursday on proposed sale of the Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power company.

The association declared in a formal resolution "that the interests of thousands of landowners in the Platte valley, as well as of the residents of its cities, are jeopardized by the proposed organization of the 'little TVA' and its construction of a huge reservoir to withhold 2 million more acre feet of water for the primary use of electric generation."

The resolution charged that the hydroelectric projects' plan to purchase the Iowa-Nebraska firm has for its main objective "the procuring of a market for uniform power at the loss of taxes to the state, its counties, cities and schools."

The association also went on record approving telegraphic communications between Chairman A. F. Buechler of Grand Island and Senator Bridges (r., N. H.), who asked a congressional investigation.

MARITAL, DIVORCE RATE HIGH

Homemaking and Breaking at 15 Year Peak in 1937.

CHICAGO. (AP). The nation's divorce and marriage rates reached 15 year highs in 1937, two University of Chicago social scientists estimated Wednesday. They figured there were 11.03 weddings for every 1,000 residents last year. The proportion was the same in 1923. The highest on record, 11.96, was recorded in 1920.

The divorce rate in 1937 was 1.93 per 1,000 population and "may have been the highest in the history of the United States." It compared with 1.66 in 1929, and 1.84 in 1936.

The study was conducted by Dr. Samuel A. Stouffer and Lyle M. Spencer. They reported no statistics were published prior to 1920 and that the bureau of census ceased to issue them in 1932. They based their reckonings on marriage reports from 23 states and divorce reports from 16 states.

PAST PRESIDENTS DINE

23 Former Chamber Heads Attend Affair.

Twenty-three past presidents of the Lincoln chamber of commerce got together for their annual dinner and informal program of talks Wednesday night. President Cole was master of ceremonies. Past presidents who attended included: Archie Furr, T. B. Strain, John Agee, H. K. Burket, Dr. B. F. Bailey, R. E. Campbell, B. A. George, Verne Hedge, R. M. Joyce, S. A. Sanderson, W. A. Selleck, F. H. Woods, J. Cass Cornell, Stanley Maly, H. F. McCulla, George Holmes, W. S. Whitten, James Harpham, Arthur Raymond, R. D. Latsch, J. L. Henn, Frank Card, Sam McKelvie and present chamber head, Dana F. Cole.

WILL ASK FOR REPEAL OF AGRICULTURAL ACT

Grain Belt Liberty League Assails Federal Farm Program.

YORK, Neb. (AP). Nebraska members of the grain belt liberty league from 10 counties resolved Wednesday to demand immediate repeal of the agricultural adjustment act. The resolution asserted the act "has failed to give any measure of relief from the economic depression."

Assailing the federal farm program for promoting a "program of scarcity," the group declared it was in "direct contrast to the time honored and successful principles of economic enterprise." They demanded freedom of enterprice with a minimum of government regulation, equality of opportunity to all, development of new and present markets for farm products and encouragement of confidence in business by removal of regulation so that labor may again be employed and the market for farm products assured."

State President C. E. Tefft, of Avoca, Neb., presided. Speakers included Troy Davis, Weeping Water, Homer McKelvie, Harvard, C. C. Coale, Bennett and William Atchison, Elmwood.

SKATING AT PIONEERS.

Skating is allowed this week on the first lake near the entrance of Pioneers park, Supt. Ager said Wednesday afternoon. This is the lake just below the bronze buffalo on the knoll.

NEBRASKA CITY MEN HONORED AT DINNER

Tribute Paid Congressman Elect Heinke and J. Hyde Sweet.

NEBRASKA CITY.—Congressman-elect George H. Heinke and his secretary, J. Hyde Sweet, were tendered a dinner and reception here Wednesday evening by fellow townsmen and guests from over the district and a few from other parts of the state. The dinner was arranged by the chamber of commerce, junior chamber and Rotary club. Congressman Heinke will leave for Washington Monday and Mr. Sweet will follow later in the week. The dining room at the Grand hotel was filled for the dinner and later a reception was tendered Messrs. Heinke and Sweet at the Elks club.

Editor Edgar Howard of the Columbus Telegram was the first speaker, after introductions had been made, and he was followed by Editor James E. Lawrence of Lincoln. Mr. Howard said many nice things about the men being honored, one of them being that George Heinke was the only man he had yet known who pledged the same thing after election that he had pledged in his campaign. He said some nice things about Mr. Sweet and said the people of Nebraska City would miss him when he transfers his editorial desk from the home city to Washington. He told a number of stories, spoke kindly of his republican friends, and gave suggestions for their guidance when they reach Washington.

Mr. Lawrence paid both serious and facetious tribute to "the incomparable Hyde Sweet and the rising statesman of Four Mile creek, Congressman-elect Heinke." Admitting that neither they nor himself had ever expected Heinke to be elected to congress, he added that "such unexcelled unanimity of opinion only furnishes greater assurance of the wisdom and the vision of the people who vote."

The blizzard of 1888, one of Nebraska's traditions, was as nothing, Mr. Lawrence ventured, "compared to the cold which is to descend upon Washington when Mr. Heinke and Mr. Sweet arrive. How it will congeal the blood which flows in the veins of those ardent new dealers! How this storm shall congeal the fingers so they no longer may reach into the treasury, shall congeal the arm so it no longer can reach at all, becomes a matter of extreme historical importance. If the Potomac is not already filled with ice floes, it will be, shortly after Congressman Heinke and his able secretary reach Washington."

After telling a number of stories to illustrate political points, Mr. Lawrence quoted from letters he said he could see Mr. Sweet dictating in Washington.

In more serious vein Mr. Lawrence declared his assurance that Mr. Heinke had "but one purpose in his heart, and that is to serve his people and his nation to the best of his ability."

To Mr. Sweet, his professional colleague for years, Mr. Lawrence said: "I shall miss you because you had respect for the fine virtues of life, and when occasion demanded, you never failed to deliver a blow in their defense. You in your modesty have never realized that you were, after a fashion, something of an institution in Nebraska City, and beyond the corporate limits of this community. I think you have ever held high the cardinal principles of journalism by speaking the convictions of your heart and conscience."

REV. HENRY ERCK HONORED

Lutherans Commemorate His 35 Years as Pastor.

Rev. Henry Erck, Lutheran student pastor at the University of Nebraska, was given a surprise party at Calvary Lutheran church Tuesday evening in honor of his completion of 35 years as a pastor and 15 as student pastor. The party was a part of the annual Christmas gathering of the Lincoln pastoral conference of the Lutheran church.

Rev. Henry Erck.

Rev. Alfred Saeger of Malcolm extended the conference's good wishes to Rev. Mr. Erck, and Rev. R. Saehr of Walton and George Buettner of St. Louis, complimented him on the work he has done. Mrs. Arthur Klinck led the singing of carols. Rev. A. F. Schrein of Crete was master of ceremonies. Games were played and Christmas favors distributed.

PAUL DOTY ON THE AIR.

Cadet Paul Doty, Lincoln, student at the Wentworth Military academy, Lexington, Mo., has been designated by the national patriotic council of Washington, D. C., to make a radio speech as a representative of that body during the Christmas holidays. Cadet Doty will speak over station KFAB the last week in December, the exact time to be announced later. The subject will be "Why Nebraska Youth Believes in Democracy."

CAR CATCHES AFIRE.

When O. A. Barber, 2426 Sewell, returned to his car parked near 14th and S sts. during the half of the basketball game in the coliseum Wednesday night, he found the upholstering in the seat afire. Firemen were called and put out the blaze, but not until damage estimated at $25 had been done. It was believed the fire was started by a lighted cigaret left in the car.

FIND MISSING GIRL'S BODY UNDER BRIDGE

Pennsylvania Police Intensify Search for Slayer; No Clues.

KINGSTON, Pa. (AP). The four day search for pretty, 19 year old Margaret Martin ended Wednesday night, state police announced, with the finding of her burlap wrapped body under a bridge near Keelersburg, Wyoming county.

Since she disappeared Saturday on her way to keep a street corner appointment with a man who had telephoned an offer of a job, police of nine states had co-ordinated their efforts to return Miss Martin alive.

State Police Maj. William A. Clarke appealed to them Wednesday night to redouble their efforts to find her slayer. However, he said clues were as scarce as they had been for the past four days. A man, who had been questioned since Monday, was released Wednesday.

WHEAT ACREAGE IS DOWN

Nearly Million Below Amount Seeded in 1937.

Federal crop authorities reported 3,824,000 acres of Nebraska land have been sown to winter wheat this year, a decline of almost a million acres from the record seeded acreage of 4,721,000 in 1937.

The condition of winter wheat Dec. 1, the report showed, was 71 percent of normal, the same as a year ago.

SETTLE DAMAGE SUIT.

Suit of Bernece Lieberman against the United Air Lines Transport corporation was settled by stipulation of parties and dismissed in District Judge Chappell's court Wednesday. The plaintiff sued for $2,500. She says she suffered injuries when she went to the municipal airport on Dec. 31, 1937, to meet friends who were coming from Des Moines by airplane. While she was at the airport the landing steps were run against her knocking her down.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate

Notice is hereby given that the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, will on January 13, 1939, at 2 o'clock P. M. offer for sale for cash to the highest bidder at public auction the following described real estate:

Said sale will be held on the premises and the property will be conveyed free and clear of all encumbrances upon approval of said sale by the City Council.

By order of City Council, December 19, 1938

THEO H. BERG, City Clerk.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals covering certain Building Alterations, Contract No. 5, in connection with Power Plant Improvements at the Municipal Power Plant, will be received by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, at the office of the City Clerk, until the hour of 10:00 o'clock A. M. on the 4th day of January, 1939, and then be publicly opened and read. Any bid received after closing time will be returned unopened.

All the bids shall be made on the printed forms attached to and made a part of the proposed contract documents. The contract documents may be examined at the office of Black and Veatch, Consulting Engineers, 4706 Broadway, Kansas City, or at the office of the City Engineer. Prospective bidders may receive a copy of the contract documents by making a deposit of $10.00. The deposit less $6.00 will be refunded to each actual bidder upon return of one set of contract documents within thirty (30) days after opening of bids.

Each proposal shall, as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, be accompanied by either a Cashier's check or a certified check on a solvent Nebraska Bank in an amount of not less than five (5) percent of the amount of the total bid.

No bid may be withdrawn within a period of thirty (30) days from and after the date fixed for opening bids.

The City Engineer's estimate of the cost of the work is $25,000.00. The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities in any proposal.

THEO. H. BERG, City Clerk.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS TWO AS RUSSIAN SPIES

Former Policeman and Soviet Travel Agency Manager Held in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES. (AP). The federal grand jury returned indictments Wednesday against two men on charges of transmitting to soviet Russia several naval intelligence reports concerning American nation defense.

Indicted were Hafis Salich, 33, former Berkeley, Calif., police officer, and Mihail Gorin, 34, manager of the soviet travel bureau, Intourist, inc.

Several witnesses before the grand jury testified that Intourist, inc., is fostered and supported by the soviet republic and that expenses of American tourists in Russia sometimes are paid for information delivered to the government.

HILL RE-ELECTED.

Lincoln local No. 10b of International Printing Pressmen and Assistants union at their annual meeting Wednesday evening reelected Sterling Hill president. R. McClure was vice president, Paul Gaughan secretary-treasurer, Harry C. Kempkes was named recording secretary and John Hergert was elected sergeant of arms.

Notice.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA.

Guadalupe R. Gallegos, et al, Plaintiffs, vs. Intermountain Building & Loan Association, a corporation, Defendant—No. E-268-Phoenix.

Order to show cause why petition of Harry W. Hill, receiver of Intermountain Building & Loan Association, an Utah Corporation, for an order authorizing and directing him to sell real estate of said corporation at private sale should not be granted.

To: All Parties interested in the Sale of Real Estate of Intermountain Building & Loan Association, an Utah corporation, Now in Possession of Harry W. Hill, Receiver:

Harry W. Hill, Receiver of the Intermountain Building & Loan Association, an Utah corporation, having filed herein his petition asking for an order authorizing him as such Receiver to sell real property at private sale, subject to confirmation by this Court, and for order to show cause thereon, said real estate being situate in the County of Lancaster, State of Nebraska, to-wit:

Lot Two (2) Block Seven (7), in Replat of Blocks One, Six, Seven and Eight, and Out Lot One in Franklin Heights, an addition to Lincoln, Lancaster County, Nebraska, according to the official plat thereof of record and on file in the office of the Register of Deeds of said County, subject to all existing easements, covenants and restrictions.

And said Receiver reporting in said petition that he has an offer therefor in the sum of Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00) purchase price, payable as follows: One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) accompanying the bid, and the balance of Two Thousand Four Hundred Dollars ($2,400.00) in cash upon the approval and confirmation of sale by this Court, the Receiver to furnish Abstract of Title showing merchantable title to said premises, and to execute a deed to said premises to be delivered to the purchaser when the full amount of the purchase price has been paid, said title to be clear of all indebtedness, liens and mortgages, it being understood that the Receiver is to pay all state, county and city taxes, together with special assessments due for the year 1938.

That the Receiver is to pay a five percent (5%) commission on the purchase price to said Humpe Real Estate Agent, as real estate agent negotiating the sale;

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered that all persons interested in the sale of real estate of the Intermountain Building & Loan Association, an Utah corporation, now in the possession of Harry W. Hill, Receiver, shall file with this Court, in the office of the Clerk of this Court, at Phoenix, Arizona, any objections they may have to the granting of said petition on or before ten o'clock a. m. on the 4th day of January, 1939, and show cause, if any they have, at that time, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, and further show cause, if any they have, why the premises should not be sold at private sale and why the offer hereinbefore mentioned should not be accepted and said premises sold for the amount hereinbefore set forth and the sale confirmed by this Court; and

It is further ordered that any person desiring to purchase or to bid upon said real property shall, prior to said date, submit any offer they may desire to make by filing the same with said Clerk of this Court before the time set for the hearing of this order to show cause, and all such offers shall be in writing and shall guarantee a sum not less than ten percent (10%) increase over the offer hereinbefore specified; and

It is hereby further ordered that in the event of there being no objections to said sale and no better offer submitted on or before the time herein set, said Receiver will be authorized and directed to complete said sale in accordance with his petition, and said sale will then be confirmed; and

It is hereby ordered that Harry W. Hill, Receiver of the Intermountain Building & Loan Association, an Utah corporation, cause the publication of this Order to Show cause in The Lincoln Journal, a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Lincoln, County of Lancaster, State of Nebraska, one time prior to said 4th day of January, 1939, the said publication to be at least ten days prior to said date.

Dated at Phoenix, Arizona, this 14th day of December, 1938.

DAVE W. LING,
Judge of the United States District Court for the District of Arizona.

Minnesota Bumps Huskers, 66-39, With Wyoming Coming Up Next

I May Be Wrong — By John Bentley

Minnesota's Gophers left this community stunned after as fancy an offensive display as has been seen here since the days of Montana State when Cat Thompson and Frank Ward were doing business.

The Gophers have in Johnny Kundla one of the best all around players that has been seen here and in Gordon Addington one of the slipperiest floormen. Kundla has that same ability to smoothly accomplish all the aims of basketball and then turn on a smile that makes his opponents, and their followers, want to bite themselves. Tom Churchill of Oklahoma using this "smiling offense" in other days just as effectively.

George Sauer, now New Hampshire coach, but at one time a Husker basketeer, tabbed Kundla as the finest operator he had ever observed on the court. Sauer pointed out another strong point possessed by this year's veteran Gopher crew. The players seemed to sense without ever looking around, just where their teammates were as they charged into the net with that fire wagon fast break. Those short, fast passes and never miss basket eyes had the Huskers badly demoralized before the fray ended.

Seldom is a team as hot as Minnesota. Any quintet making good over half of its shots from the floor, as Minnesota did, is hitting far more than average. And there were few long ones. They were mostly of the legitimate variety.

Ted O'Sullivan and Parke Carroll, the game officials, were calling them close and this should help Dave MacMillan's crew when it plays Temple and New York U. in the east. The eastern arbiters really keep their whistles wet and warm from constant use, Paul Amen offering an example. On a holiday swing a couple of seasons ago, Nebraska was playing an eastern team on its home court. Howard "Pete" Baker made a short pass and stepped out of the way to screen his mate as an opponent tried to move in on him. This one got by. Not long afterward Baker made a similar pass but hadn't had time to "set the screen" when the whistle blew. A foul was called on him.

"What for?" Baker asked.

"You can't set a screen like that," the arbiter said.

"But," Baker explained, "I hadn't even set a screen!"

"No," the official agreed," but I could see by the glint in your eye that you were going to."

Bill Bockes thinks Coach Bob Gibb of Crete, has solved the "debating society" trouble in high school football huddles. Gibb last fall pulled his center, quarterback and halfback behind the regular huddle and these three talked over the next offensive move. When they had agreed, they moved into the regular huddle, the signal was called, with no backtalk or argument.

Clarence Swanson, the old Husker blue, related an incident at the elk meat—yum, yum!—dinner which Les King and J. Lloyd McMaster pitched for the Lincoln high football team. It was back in the days when Swanie was playing end next to Lyman, a situation for which Swanson has been forever thankful.

Iowa was the opponent in this particular contest and the Hawkeyes had Duke Slater, All America tackle, in its lineup. Lyman assured Coach Schulte that he need not fret. That fellow Slater would be hogtied and handled by the time he (Lyman) got thru with him.

"The game hadn't progressed far," said Swanson, "until out came a couple of subs with a stretcher. They rolled Lyman on to it, and as they carried him past where I was standing, Link said: 'Any message you want delivered to your folks?"

That could be added to that list of "famous last words."

Mrs. R. A. Kovanda, mother of Bill, Husker basketeer, baked a bag of kulaches for Asst. Coach Lewandowski and brought them down from her home in Elk Creek, Wednesday night. She was anxious to make the presentation before the game because she confessed that she is an active rooter and she was afraid she might find herself beating some spectator over the head with them in a moment of exultation—or dismay. There were far more opportunities to dismay than to exult, Wednesday night.

HOEHNE'S POCKET CLOSE FRAY FROM PHILLIPPIES

With Meyerhoff scoring ten points, Hoehne's won a narrow 24-22 decision over Philippies in City league division 3 games at Everett Wednesday night. Arango's five paced Lincoln Kats past Neffs, 16-14; Cunningham's three was best for Lakers during a 10-8 victory over Squirrel Dodgers, and Aguilar looped seven for C.H.E. as Stroms fell, 14-8.

Emerald downed Raymond, 27-11, in a division 2 battle with Aguilar tallying seven.

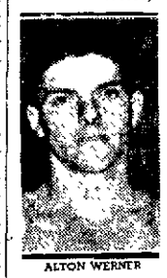

SIZZLING INVADERS MAKE GOOD ON 28 OF 51 SHOTS AT BASKET

Addington and Kundla Pace Rout; Crack Guarding Holds Scarlet.

KOVANDA GETS 9 POINTS

BY WALTER E. DOBBINS.

Nebraska, somewhat groggy from a Minnesota beating, will again be in the role of basketball host Friday night when Willard "Dutch" Witte, former Lincoln high and Cornhusker athlete, brings his Wyoming Cowboys to the coliseum.

ALTON WERNER

Witte's squad, a contender for Big Seven conference honors and for eight years an outstanding representative of the Rocky Mountain section, has broken even on its midwestern road jaunt. Creighton's Bluejays came thru with a 57 to 49 victory but the Cowboys evened it up against Missouri, 42 to 38.

Wyoming worked out in Kansas City Wednesday afternoon and Thursday will tackle Omaha U. at the Central high gym before coming to Lincoln.

Alton Werner has been named Nebraska's game captain and Coach Browne announced that Wednesday night's officials, Parke Carroll and Ted O'Sullivan, also would handle the Cowboy skirmish.

Win Fourteen Straight.

Minnesota's undefeated quintet, eclipsing even the great performance of Bradley Tech here last Saturday, ran its string of consecutive victories to 14 Wednesday night as a bewildered Nebraska team fell before a 66 to 39 count.

Gopher artists banged away at the net 51 times and "hit" 28 times, or 55 percent, while the Scarlet's best efforts resulted in connecting with only 13 out of 75 tosses or 17 percent.

Exceptional ball handling, clever passing, an air tight defense and a fast break offense that left their opponents standing still, were all in the Gopher scheme of operation.

Game Captain Bill Kovanda led the scoring for the Huskers with four buckets and a gratis toss but he, as well as his teammates, spent most of the evening chasing the Gophers up and down the court.

Even at First.

Minnesota got off to a 4-0 lead but the Gopher superiority wasn't evident until late in the opening half when Kundla and Maki swung into action and brought their team from a 25-19 lead to a 31-20 advantage at the intermission.

Once during the initial period the Gophers took seven straight shots without a miss. You can't beat that kind of basketball; you rarely can lie it.

Yet, three times during the opening half the score was tied. First at 7-all; then at 9 up and again at 13-13.

In the first seven minutes they missed on two shots, running their score up to 45-21, Nebraska's lone contribution being a free toss by Jack Jackson.

Kundla Out on Fouls.

And so the game went on. MacMillan sent in his substitutes in the next few minutes and the last part of the game was a battle royal. Kundla, who went out on fouls, was the last Gopher regular in the game.

Johnny Kundla, with five field baskets and three free tosses topped the Minnesota scoring altho he was followed closely by Paul Maki, with 11 markers and Addington with an even 10 tallies.

Minnesota used a high lob pass effectively a few times but most of its baskets developed from the fast break with a man under the net taking a quick pass from a mate for a setup.

CITY CHECKER TOURNEY INTO SEMIFINAL ROUND

Mark Nelson, Joe Stanton, Lloyd Mills and Roy McCormick, Wednesday reached the semifinals of the annual city checker tourney at the Y. M. C. A. The quartet will play a round robin of four games with each opponent. The top pair at the end of the competition will battle for Nelson's title on New Years day.

Too few games have been played in class B to determine the semi-finalists, but leaders Wednesday were B. R. Jones, D. D. Coble, B. F. Moore and Lyle Bryant. Standings in class A at the end of Wednesday's play:

EAST AND WEST GRID SQUADS START WORK

Biff Jones and Hollingbery Begin Preparations for Game.

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP). Under command of Coaches Andy Kerr of Colgate and Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, 22 eastern football stars arrived Thursday to practice for the annual Shrine East-West game Jan. 2 in Kezar studium.

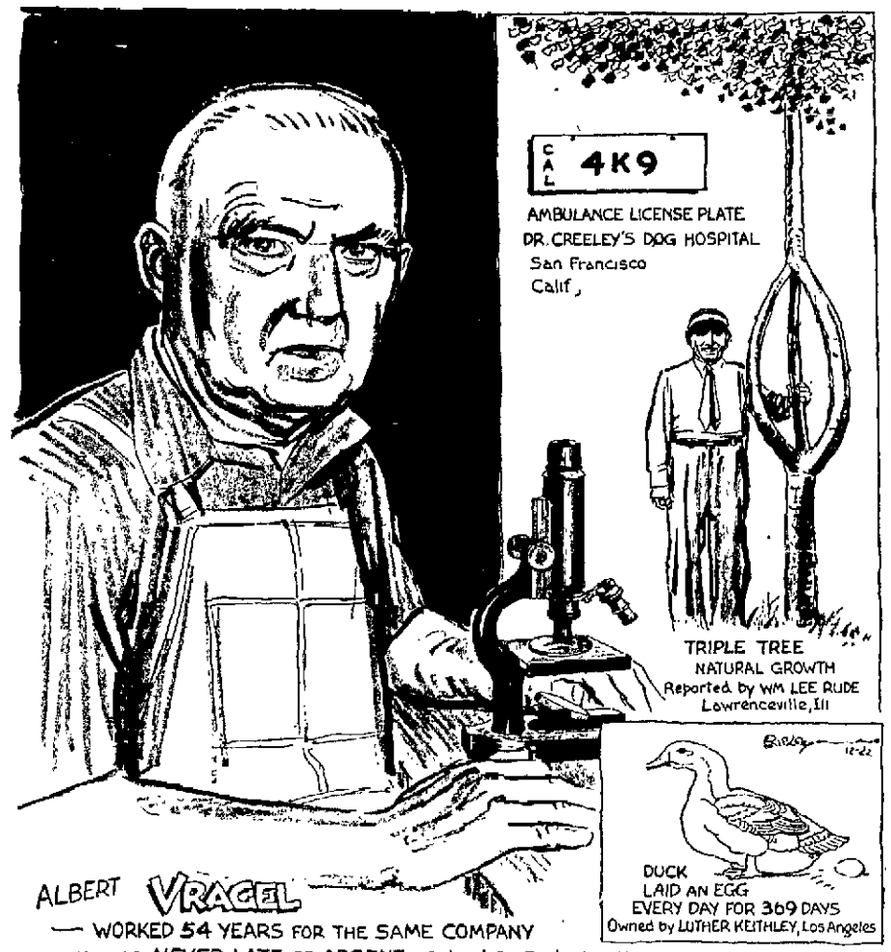

Both the eastern and western stars will be guests at a Shrine luncheon and then will visit the Shriners' hospital for crippled children, which will benefit from receipts of the annual clash.

The western squad assembled Wednesday, with Babe Hollingbery of Washington State and Biff Jones of Nebraska as coaches. They will work out on the Stanford university field at Palo Alto.

The east squad will be quartered at Berkeley and work out on the University of California field.

HUSKERS MIGHT FIND EASIER CAGE SAILING

Big Six Foes Loaded Guns for Nebraska Veteran Five Last Year.

BY CARL LUNDQUIST.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP). Nebraska may have an easier time winning basketball games in the Big Six conference this winter, probably because no one expects the Cornhuskers to be championship contenders.

Last year every other opponent "loaded up" for the all veteran Lincoln quintet, because the experts decreed that they were the most likely to lead the league from start to finish. The pressure never was off and when the team got off to a slow start it never regained ground and finished in a tie for third place with Missouri.

Coach William Harold Browne, absorbed the loss of almost his whole first team thru graduation, in a surprisingly matter of fact way.

"I know we have a big job ahead, but we ought to have more fun and may do just as much damage, this year," he said. "We still have four major lettermen around which to build a team and some of the sophomores look like they are ready to make the grade."

Browne has a big squad of 23 players working out and altho his first team combination is fairly well established, he plans several changes and may return from a road trip to the west coast with a new lineup.

Tackle Hard Schedule.

The Cornhuskers, incidentally, have taken on one of the most ambitious intersectional schedules of the year. Last week, they lost to Bradley Tech, the Peoria powerhouse, which has won four games from big time teams, without turning on full pressure. The Huskers play Wyoming Friday night, then leave for California for games with California, U. C. L. A., and Stanford during the holidays.

SOIL EROSION IS DAMAGING FISHING

Kentucky Survey Shows Many Streams Damaged for Anglers.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—James J. Gilpin of the game and fish department of conservation of Kentucky states that thousands of fishing sites that once were the joy of fishermen are providing less sport and are yielding fewer fish this year than ever before as a result of soil erosion.

In all parts of the country muddy waters and silt are diminishing the stock of fish. The reason is plain. Eggs laid by game fish cannot survive when streams are full of mud and erosion debris. Also, blanketing of the bottoms of streams with ooze and silt is destructive to food supplies, such as insect larvae, worms and small plants.

The decreased supply of game fish in our streams has not come about suddenly. Unwise use of the land over a period of years, resulting in an excess runoff of rain water, which washes tons of soil into the streams, has been steadily cutting down the rate of propagation.

Until there is more general control of soil erosion fishing conditions will not improve greatly. Unless silting of stream channels is stopped, there is no reason to expect that the fish can be brought back and stock restored in any great number.

MULLEN DROPS ARNOLD.

MULLEN, Neb.—Increasing a slim 13 to 12 halftime lead, Mullen slapped a 27 to 18 decision on Arnold here. The winners iced the fray in the final quarter when two of Arnold's aces went out on personal fouls. Christman of Mullen left the free for all fray in the same manner.

M'LEMORE

Lou Nova Won't Punch With Bomber

BY HENRY M'LEMORE.

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (Copyright, 1938, UP). Not since Falstaff, the No. 1 heavyweight in Shakespeare's stable, expressed the opinion that discretion was the better part of valor, has any fighter waxed as wise as did Lou Nova when he arrived in Los Angeles.

After kissing his wife and tipping his porter, the boy who established himself as the biggest "white hope" by beating Tommy Farr in New York last week, said he was ready to box, but not fight, Joe Louis.

"It would be suicide for me to get in there and try to out-hit Louis," Nova said, "because he starts hitting where I leave off. He can out-punch me any day in the week, and my chance of a victory over him lies in my superior speed and ability to stand off and cut him down. I think I can do that. Of course, if he clips me one of those rights there is no telling what would happen, because I don't think there ever was a man who hits harder than Joe does."

Nova revealed that he planned to refuse Mike Jacobs' offer to pay his expenses back to New York to see Louis defend his title against John Henry Lewis in Madison Square Garden in January.

Not Going East.

"Mike said he wanted me to see that fight," Nova said, "but I am going to stay out here. I know all I want to know about Joe. I have seen him in several fights, and have seen the pictures of all his fights. I have my plan of battle set, and I don't want to see anything that might change it."

Nova praised Farr as a tough, game fighter, and laughed at Gene Tunney as a judge of young heavyweights. It was Tunney, who, before Nova's fight with Farr, said that Lou was sure to be beaten and was being rushed along too fast. Nova said that he long has been familiar with Tunney's ability to call 'em wrong, and was delighted when Gene predicted a beating for him.

"All I was afraid of," Nova said with a laugh, "was that Tunney would pick me to win."

It is amazing the talent former heavyweight champions have for guessing the wrong fellow. Before Tunney there was Jim Corbett. Corbett, a lovely fellow who knew more about boxing than six books could hold, never was able to tab a winner. At one time or another he guessed for every newspaper and magazine in the country, and was brilliantly, consistently, thoroly, wholeheartedly wrong. He couldn't have picked cotton with a Rust machine.

Nova felt none too kindly toward Eddie Joseph, the man who refereed his fight with Farr. Had it not been for Joseph, Nova said, he would have knocked out the Welshman in the fourteenth round. In that round, according to Nova, he had Farr where one punch was all that was needed to flatten him for keeps.

"Just when I was ready to fire the punch," Nova said, "the referee kept us apart. I thought his action meant that Farr was thru. Instead, he sort of gave Farr a rest and then motioned me into action again. I never could get going after that."

Nova would like to fight two more battles before meeting Louis. "I'd love a whack at that Baer," he said.

He's not the only one, by the way.

RIVERDALE POCKETS PAIR.

RIVERDALE, Neb.—Riverdale chalked up a double victory over Miller teams, the first winnings, 15-11, and the second team topping the Miller seconds, 20-5. For the first stringers, the offensive work of H. Peterson and the defensive play of Grassmeyer stood out.

JOHNNY MIZE HAS TOP SLUGGING MARK

Another Georgian Comes Up to Fame the Hard Route.

NEW YORK, (UP). A modern Horatio Alger hero was unveiled in the person of Johnny Mize, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, with the release of official National league miscellaneous averages for 1938.

JOHNNY MIZE

Like the dime novel boys who always won out the hard way, Mize climaxed a despairing four year battle against adversity by leading the league in slugging this season.

He slugged at a .614 clip, or 31 points better than that of little Mel Ott of the Giants who finished second in the total base column.

Behind Mize's mark is the story of a man who didn't know the meaning of defeat. A product of Demorest, Ga., Mize came up to the majors in 1935 after several years of schooling at Rochester in the International league.

He was sold, on a conditional basis, by the Cardinals for a reported sum of $55,000 to the Cincinnati Reds. Mize was a sensation that year in spring training but suddenly, when things were brightest, he agitated a groin injury. The Reds tabbed him a physical failure and returned him to St. Louis, and he was sent back to Rochester.

Starts Over Again.

The following winter, Dr. Robert Hyland, Cardinal physician, operated and Johnny started a comeback.

In 1936, he reported to the Cardinal training camp full of hope but he ran into Mr. Trouble himself—James "the Ripper" Collins. Collins was the Cardinals' regular first baseman, an able fielder and one of the greatest clutche hitters in the league. There was slight chance that Mize could replace such a ball player. He waited and hoped.

Suddenly, for some unknown reason, Frankie Frisch, then manager of the Cards, benched Collins, even tho he was hitting at a .300 clip. Mize was told to go out there and play first base—and how he did. He hit .329 in 126 games and followed thru with .364 for 1937.

This year, after finishing only five points behind Ernie Lombardi of the Cincinnati Reds, who led the league with .337, Mize copped the crown of top slugger.

Joe Medwick Shines.

"Firsts" in other departments were: Runs batted in—Joe Medwick, Cards, 122; bases on balls—Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn, 119; strikeouts—Vince DiMaggio, Bees, 134 (new record); hit by pitcher—Ival Goodman, Cincinnati, 16; hit into double plays—Ernie Lombardi, Reds, 30. The league's ten leading sluggers:

Philadelphia Residents Have Strange Ideas About Weights

BY JOHN LARDNER.

(Copyright by the NANA (The Lincoln Journal and other newspapers).

NEW YORK.—It came as something of a shock last week to chums and acquaintances of Thomas Loughran, known far and wide as the nicest man who ever fought a fight or tilted a teacup, to learn that Thomas had been caught more or less red handed in the old Philadelphia failing of tipping the scales.

Nobody knows exactly why this weakness is so rampant in Philadelphia. The average Philadelphian is honest and upstanding, kind to animals and good to his mother, but, when it comes to a matter of weight, he is seized by a deep rooted, primitive, atavistic urge to commit larceny.

Take the matter of the so-called "Philadelphia lightweight." A Philadelphia lightweight is any welterweight or middleweight who would rather not fight welterweights and middleweights. Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler, a couple of immortal Philadelphia lightweights, could always weigh 135 pounds in Philadelphia, tho elsewhere they would have had to cut off their right arms to make 140.

Since neither Benjamin nor Lewis cared to cut off his right arm, for personal reasons, the two boys always weighed in for their fights in Philadelphia when possible. When it was not possible, they carried Philadelphia scales around with them. The beauty of the Philadelphia scales is that they will register 135 in Dubuque when the Dubuque scales are unanimously registering 145, with no rain in sight.

Tells of Other Days.

Mr. Leonard is fond of reminiscing about his Philadelphia lightweight days.

"I remember one time when I climbed aboard the scales to weigh in for Tendler," says Benjamin. "The commissioner took a look and said, 'The scales stop at exactly 135.' Some heckler in the room spoke up and said, 'That's more than you can say for Benny.' It was most embarrassing.

"I understand Lew Tendler now weighs something like 180. Well, he's put on a few pounds since he was fighting as a lightweight. About ten pounds, I'd say at a guess. Lew was a very ample lightweight, if you follow me," says Mr. Leonard cheerfully, "and so was I, so was L."

Mr. Thomas Loughran, the nicest man in fight history, has given a new twist to the old Philadelphia lightweight technique. Mr. Loughran is the colner of the "Philadelphia heavyweight." Instead of subtracting, Thomas adds. And he doesn't stint himself. Mr. Loughran's special physical culture course will add 20 pounds to your weight in five minutes.

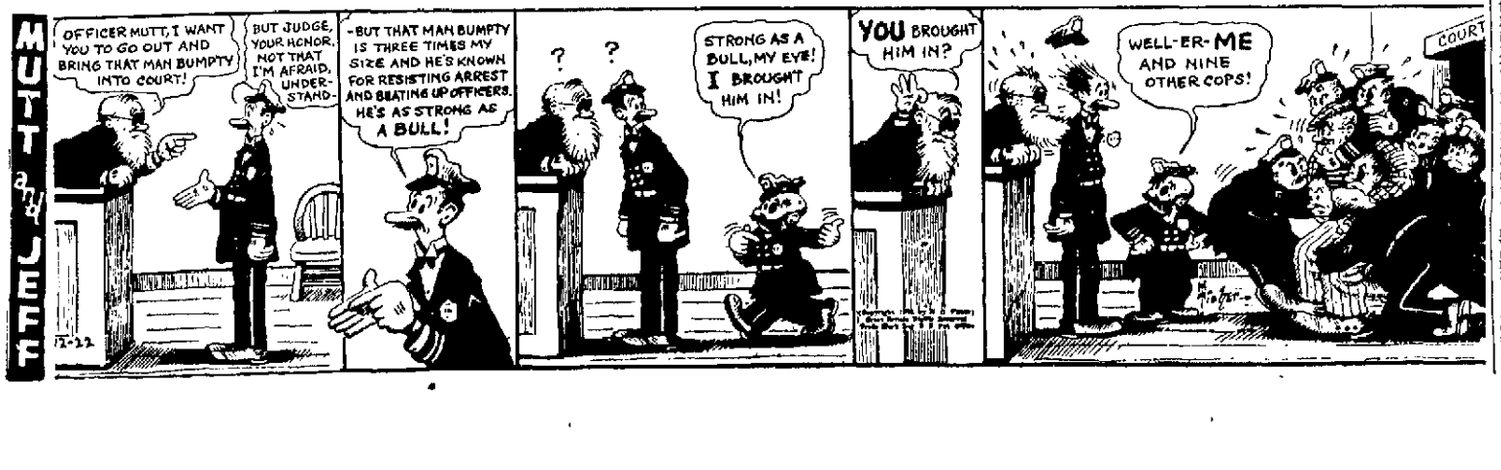

Works Reverse Angle.

Tommy manages a promising young fighter named Matt Raymond, out of Duke university. Matt will always be a middleweight to his mother, but Mr. Loughran made him a Philadelphia heavyweight. Going to New York to meet a big fellow, Henry Cooper (194 pounds), Matt displayed considerable coyness when the commissioners asked him to disrobe for the weigh-in.

"My protege is very modest," explained Thomas Loughran. "Let him keep his drawers on, commissioner, and his coat."

"Tush, gammon, and stuff and nonsense," replied Maj. Gen. John J. Phelan. "Remove the haberdashery, young man."

The haberdashery, when removed, was found to contain some 20 pounds in lead weights. Mr. Loughran laughed a light, but somewhat hollow laugh, and, a few minutes later, was detected in the act of giving Mr. Raymond moral support by leaning on the scales. Between them, Tommy and his fighter weighed quite a bit. Alone, by official request, Raymond weighed 164. He was every inch a Philadelphia heavyweight.

(Unrevised final figures)

NEW YORK (AP) Stocks worked at cross purposes in Thursday's market moderate strength in rails contrasting with fresh weakness of aircrafts There was little noteworthy in the news either for or against the market and brokers inclined to blame spotty price formations mainly on adjustment of accounts for the income tax collectors and to a desire to clear the decks for the coming holidays Dealings were somewhat under those of the preceding session transfers being around 1 000 000 shares

Profit taking hit the aviations early in the proceedings and the majority repeated their nose dive of Wednesday Douglas Aircraft was off more than 2 points at one time, and United Sperry and Glenn Martin were subjected to intermittent pressure The better performance of the rails was heartening to Wall street Gains here ran to a point or so altho top marks were reduced in most cases at the close Conversely aircrafts cut extreme losses before the finish

Rails apparently came into favor on renewed hopes the nearby congress would make transportation problems its first concern While freight loadings currently were receding early November carrier statements and estimates were well up to optimistic predictions and it was believed there would be a sharp rebound in freight traffic after the turn of the year Last week's loadings aggregate due Thursday was delayed by the coming Christmas holiday

Questions regarding just how far the government will go in its rearmament program were said to be partly responsible for the reversal in the aircrafts In addition some holders were tempted by bountiful profits piled up by this group in the past few months Plane production in the final two months of this year was expected to fall below the same 1937 period owing to technical factors

Building shares held their own as 1939 construction prospects maintained an exceptionally cheering aspect Engineering awards this week were placed at 44 percent above the previous week and 93 percent ahead of the comparable week a year ago

A brisk jump in bank clearings to over 7 billion dollars for the week ended Wednesday was seen as a bolstering influence It was the first time this total had been exceeded in nearly two years and was attributed partly to the extension of the fall upturn in industrial and retail buying

WHEAT CLIMBS FULL CENT

Most Dealings Confined to December Adjustments

CHICAGO (AP) Wheat prices rose as much as a cent a bushel at times here Thursday but trade was mostly pre-holiday and buyers had difficulty maintaining the advance Export business was quiet and most of the dealings in futures were confined to adjustment of accounts with the winding up of trading in December contracts

Wheat closed ⅜ to 1 cent higher than Wednesday, May 66⅞@67c July 66⅝@66¾c corn was ⅛ to ⅝ lower May 51⅞@52c July 52¾c oats gained ⅛ to ⅝

Outstanding December contracts remaining to be settled at the start of trading totaled 1 324 000 bushels After Thursday these contracts can be satisfied only by delivery of actual wheat and this must be done within the next week Liverpool prices advanced ⅛@⅝c at the close and this together with reports that neither Australia nor Argentina are pressing new crop wheat on the market also helped strengthen values here

Official figures confirming an unusually poor winter wheat condition over a substantially reduced acreage gave the wheat market only a slight upward push

Reasons why the crop outlook had little effect on the trade included the fact that the government's estimates were only slightly more pessimistic than recent private figures Furthermore the report came at a time when pre holiday quiet had enveloped a market already suffering from neglect of a broad speculative participation

Most traders were inclined to believe the report will encourage investment buying on price setbacks but pointed out the prospect of reduced production in 1939 is offset by the big supply available now General precipitation in the winter wheat belt the past 24 hours also kept buying in check

The planted winter wheat area of 46 173 000 acres is 19 percent less than a year ago but 21 percent larger than the allotment under the farm program Condition of 72 percent of normal compared with 76 percent a year ago and was the second lowest on record

Corn prices declined fractionally during early trade influenced by substantial pre holiday receipts here and the pause of export demand Rye also was fractionally lower reflecting the government report which indicated a larger 1939 crop on the basis of current conditions

GRAIN NOTES.

CHICAGO (AP) A bullish construction is placed by traders on the department of agriculture report tentatively estimating the 1939 domestic winter wheat crop at 485 million bushels the smallest since 1935 and about 200 million less than was harvested this year The crop condition of 72 percent of normal the lowest on record except in 1932 when it was 68 9 is regarded as indicating there may be above normal abandonment of acreage this winter

Reported lack of rain in Argentina with temperatures there ranging upward of 103 degrees is tending to increase apprehension regarding the outcome of the new Argentine corn crop

LIVERPOOL WHEAT AND COTTON

LIVERPOOL (AP) Cotton futures slanted downward after early irregularity to close 1 to 2 points net lower Bombay and Alexandria selling and hedging against outside growths more than offset scattered buying

Wheat futures recovered early losses to close ⅛ to ⅝ penny higher on bullish interpretation of the American crop report and American and continental buying

LIVESTOCK.

CHICAGO (AP) Light hogs advanced as much as 15 cents in an active market Cattle trade was mainly steady to 25 cents lower and lambs were about steady Hogs received totaled 21 000 or 2 000 less than expected The run equalled that of a week ago and was 1 000 more than a year ago Packers took 6 000 direct The market was mostly 5 to 10 cents higher with top at $7 75

Weighty steers were down as much as 25 cents while yearlings and light steers held about steady under lessening shipper demand Best steers brought from $12 00 to $12 85

The fat lamb trade opened about steady

NEW YORK (AP) Bonds put on a better front and some recent losses were recovered, particularly among rail loans In moderately active trading liens of Illinois Central Rock Island Santa Fe American & Foreign Power International Telephone Missouri Pacific Southern Pacific and Western Union pushed up fractions to around 2 points and were holding near best levels early in the final hour

U S governments also edged ahead for gains ranging from 1 32d to 4 32ds of a point A few inactive corporates sold off a point or more in thin markets In this group were Studebaker 6s Northern Pacific 5s and Nickel Plate 5½s Foreign loans tended lower

CIVIL SERVICE FOR POLICE IS PROPOSED

State Officers' Association Mails Revised Draft of Bill to Legislators

OMAHA (AP) The Nebraska Policemen's association will ask the forthcoming state legislature for a compulsory civil service merit system for all Nebraska cities with more than 5 000 population, officials said

Revised drafts of the proposed bill have been mailed to all Nebraska police departments and state senators The first draft of the bill released a month ago suggested the merit system be made optional

The measure now provides for a three member police civil commission in each city appointed for six year terms by the mayor staggered to make one member's term expire every two years

Appointment or promotion would be by competitive examination In case of promotion the commission would be required to take into consideration the policeman's efficiency character conduct and seniority

In cities of more than 75 000 population the chief would be appointed from active policemen who hold civil service seniority rights and who have had at least ten years continuous service Cities under 75 000 could appoint as chief a policeman having five years continuous service

Age limits of 24 to 31 years would be set Policemen could not be removed demoted or suspended except by majority vote of the commission after a public hearing

Accompanying copies of the bill to state senators was a letter signed by H L Moore Grand Island association president in which he said the bill would go far to elevate standards of police departments Walt Young Omaha secretary said the bill was drafted after an exhaustive study of bills and ordinances in other cities A first draft was sent to Nebraska departments for revision

RULING FOR STATE PATROL

Must Get Authority to File in Justice Courts

Francis V Robinson assistant attorney general advised Capt R F Weller of the state safety patrol Thursday that patrolmen should obtain consent of county attorneys before filing complaints in justice courts

The ruling said that since justices of the peace receive no remuneration except court costs they would have a pecuniary interest Weller sought the interpretation after District Judge George W Irwin of Gering ruled to that effect At the same time Weller said the patrol has taken most of its cases to county courts

RECEIVER APPEALS.

E H Luikart receiver of a bank at Verdigre appealed to the supreme court Thursday from the refusal of the district court to order him as receiver of the State bank of Omaha to turn over $1 922 in dividends belonging to the National Surety company now in liquidation in New York state to satisfy in part judgments for $11 562 that as receiver of the Verdigre bank he recovered against the surety company as bondsman for two defaulting bank officers The assets of the National Surety company are being handled by the New York state superintendent of insurance companies and the district court held that they could not be garnisheed at the instance of the Verdigre bank receiver

Contract Bridge.

BY ELY CULBERTSON.
[Copyright 1938 By Ely Culbertson]

The question in the recent examination that brought the loudest "squawks" from the defeated gladiators was No 6, which was as follows

Both sides vulnerable East the opponent on your right deals and bids one spade You South hold

♠ None ♥ K 10 8 6 ♦ A J 8 5 3 ♣ Q J 9 2

What call do you make?

The official answer was that South should bid two diamonds, and there was a 14 point demerit for passing and a 12 point demerit for a double. The "doublers" accepted my argument against their choice in unprotesting [or perhaps merely dignified] silence, but the passers were vociferous in their disapproval Something like 800 disgruntled members of the Passers club wrote to me demanding how I could justify a vulnerable overcall at the two level when South was so palpably short of the six winners required for such a bid under the Culbertson rule of two and three

I answered them and hereby answer publicly as follows I warned all readers at the very outset that questions would not be answered solely on the basis of the Culbertson system Nevertheless and notwithstanding since I am being attacked on the basis of the rule of two and three, I must point out that South's hand is only a small fraction of a playing trick short of the required six In my Gold Book I stressed the fact that intermediate cards must be weighed in counting winners, and pointed out that while the K 5 3 2 of a side suit can be figured at only one winner [½ for the king and ½ for the fourth card], that the K 10 9 2 is quite another matter and should be figured at about 1½ winners

In question 6 I carefully inserted into the heart suit, underneath the king the intermediates 10 and 8 and in the club suit the nine spot rather than a lower card The diamond suit, of course must be counted as follows One winner for the ace and a plus for the jack Two long cards give a total of three plus winners in diamonds If to these you add 1½ tricks for one of the side suits and one winner for the other you are short precisely a plus value On top of this there is the imponderable but important consideration of South's distribution A hand divided 5-4-4-0 must be assigned greater potential value than the more prosaic distributions 5-3-2-2 5-4-2-2 5-4-3-1 etc South should take some action, if only to initiate a possible sacrifice line of bidding and the only logical action he can take is to overcall with two diamonds

West opened the diamond deuce to his partner's second bid suit because he West had a high supporting honor Declarer won and drew trumps in two leads carefully noting that East who had shown at least ten cards in the red suits also had two spades A low heart now was led East won and returned a diamond, which declarer ruffed Another heart followed and another diamond ruff, followed by the ruff of South's last heart stripped the North South hands to the black suits Now with the play in dummy declarer had to consider the club situation Obviously he was home if he lost only one club trick but on the bidding it was certain that clubs could not break 3 2 Since East was marked with no more than a singleton club declarer carefully led a low club away from the A K He was perfectly willing for East to win this trick with an honor if he had it since successive finesses could then be taken against West, who was marked with an original holding of four clubs As it happened East had only the three spot, hence declarer was forced to put up the ten West won with the jack and since a red suit return would permit declarer to ruff in one hand while discarding in the other returned the club nine Dummy's king won and, when East showed out declarer's previous caution was rewarded Declarer entered his own hand with a trump and led a club toward the A 8 West, reduced to the Q 7 was of course, trapped and the contract became a laydown

STOCK FEEDING TESTS IN FRANKLIN COUNTY

Last Winter's Experiments to Be Followed Up on Larger Scale.

Franklin county is again to be the scene of an important livestock feeding demonstration in 1939. Corn and various types of grain sorghums will be directly compared when fed to cattle and hogs.

The demonstration will be an enlarged duplication of the activity carried on last year which attracted statewide attention. More than 1,000 farm people attended the finish of the test at Franklin early in the spring.

Willard Waldo, county agent, is again in charge of local arrangements for the tests, which are being run in the feedlots of the Hevner Serum company at Franklin. Co-operating with the farm bureau is the agricultural college extension service.

Relative feeding value of whole Early Kalo, whole Sooner Milo and corn for hogs will be determined. Corn is being compared with Sooner Milo in winter feeding rations for steer calves. The importance of the use of protein supplements for producing rapid and economical gains with hogs will also be brought out.

Four hundred pound steers are being used in the cattle demonstration. They all get three pounds of alfalfa daily and a basic ration of silage. Calves in one lot get 5 pounds of cracked corn per day while those in the other lot get 5 pounds of cracked Sooner milo. The demonstration will continue for 100 days when the animals will be on a full grain ration and fattened for early fall market.

Four lots of spotted Poland China hogs are being fed at Franklin also. They come from the same herd and are uniform in type and weight. The first lot is receiving corn, the second gets early kalo and the third Sooner milo. The three lots get a supplement of three parts tankage and one part alfalfa meal, self-fed, so they have free choice between the grain and protein supplement. The fourth receives ground Sooner milo and alfalfa meal, free choice but no tankage.

Similar feeding demonstrations are expected to be set up in other sections of the state soon by the college.

GIRL IS SOLO VIOLINIST

At 14 Appears With Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

CHICAGO. (UP). Lucy Neilsen, 14, said she would rather be a doctor than a violinist. "Third best," she said, "I like to collect spiders."

She made a successful appearance as soloist with the Chicago symphony orchestra. She pleased the audience and critics gave her very favorable notices.

She played the second and third movements of Wienlaski's concerto in D minor. But she intends to be a doctor and is taking a pre-medical course at the University of Chicago.

REPEAL OF AAA DEMANDED

Hasn't Helped, Says Grain Belt Liberty League.

YORK, Neb. (AP). The Nebraska chapter of the Grain Belt Liberty League, organized during the last campaign, is demanding immediate repeal of the agricultural adjustment act. Representatives from ten counties went on record against the AAA here, asserting it "has failed to give any measure of relief from the economic depression." The group also argued the federal farm program is promoting "scarcity" and called for "freedom of enterprise."

Now Showing—	Now Showing—
Jeanette MacDonald Nelson Eddy In Victor Herbert's "SWEETHEARTS" STUART	2—Feature Attractions—2 Jack Haley Jack Oakie in "Thanks for Everything" —PLUS!— "A CHRISTMAS CAROL" A Feature Length Picture. LINCOLN

Follow These Simple Rules

Read the Ads in the Gift Selector carefully and select one full line of type from 3 or more advertisements. Combine the lines into one humorous paragraph like the Chuckle below. Name the advertisers from whose ads the lines were taken. Only ads from this Gift Selector are considered in this contest. For the 16 best "Chuckle" ads sent in for today's contest, The Journal and Star will give a pair of guest tickets to the Lincoln or Stuart theaters. All entries must be in our office by 6 p. m. of the day following the contest. Those received after 6 p. m. considered with all others the following day. Winners will be announced here 3 days later. Mail or bring your entry to the "Chuckle Contest Editor" in care of this paper. Keep trying until you win, send in as many entries as you wish. Newspaper employes not eligible. Prizes will be mailed to winners.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND by EDWARD A. WIRGMAN, D.Sc.

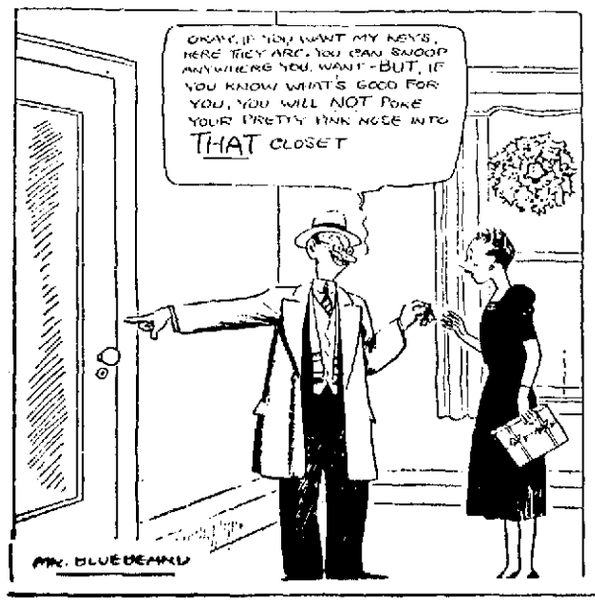

1. Yes. No doubt this is partly due to habit, social custom and expectation, and partly due to heredity. A boy grows up with the distinct idea that it is "sissified" to cry or show especial sympathy or affection, etc., in public. Even his anger, fear and excitement, he is supposed to control—and usually does—more than women do. Women are also more self centered, more sensitive and slightly less inhibited than most men. All these trends—both natural and acquired—make us a bit surprised when men rant around or cry or talk back to each other in public, but when women do such things, we say, "just like a woman."

2. Newspapers by all means. In a national election, for example, what influence do books exert? Scarcely any at all, other than what they may have exerted in our general education. The same is true in all national emergencies, such as war, disasters, appeals for charity, approval or disapproval of public characters, etc. In fact an immense number of books are made up from material that has long ago been in the newspapers.

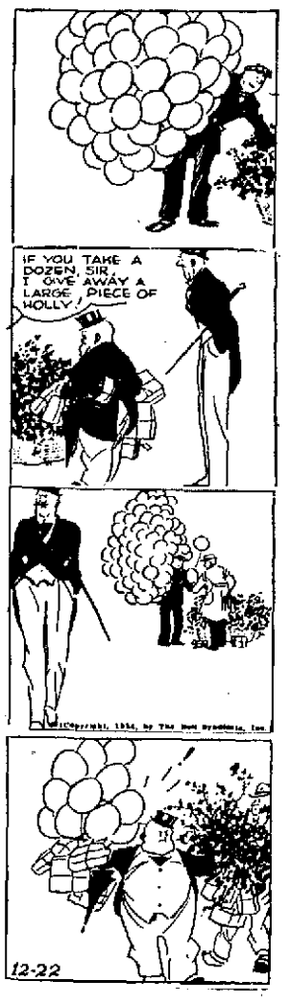

3. Modern psychology gives the impression that civilization makes people more unlike and more unequal to each other than does savagery. No doubt savages are born about as nearly alike as civilized people, but their environment is so simple that it seems certain they grow up with much more similar habit patterns, customs, costumes, attitudes, education, interests and desires than civilized people do. About all a savage can do is to become a hunter or warrior, but there are over 6,000 occupations in civilized countries, each of which makes one slightly different from his fellows.

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN

Screaming wildly, "You are the cause of my woes," Alextar leaped forward and cleft the skull of Tomos. Then, before anyone could prevent him, he placed the point of the sword at his heart and threw himself upon it. Thus died the last of the mad rulers of Cathne.

No tears were wasted on Alextar or his malign minister Tomos. Instead, both commoners and nobles united in joyous proclamation of the beloved Thudos as king. In gratitude, Thudos offered Tarzan a princely title and vast treasurely if he would remain in Cathne.

The Lord of the Jungle shook his head, "I am in search of a girl who was under my protection. I shall not rest until I find her." A noble who was a captain of warriors picked up his ears. He separated himself from the gathering and stepped toward Tarzan.

"What kind of a girl was she?" he asked. Tarzan described Gonfala in utmost detail. The warrior frowned. "I believe I know where she is," he said sadly, "but you dare not go there to seek her." The ape-man answered: "There is no place Tarzan dares not go!"

AUNT HET by ROBERT QUILLEN

"The martyrs in Germany haven't suffered in vain. You won't see any more statesmen surrender to the nazis in the hope that they'll act civilized."
